EXPOSE PLAN TO KILL FOSS, WRECK MILLS

LAWRENCE, Jan. 18.—Information came to the police and other forces on guard in this city to-day that a dynamite plot was hatched at a secret meeting here on Tuesday night, at which the following plan was decided upon:

The bringing of sixteen dynamiters and bomb throwers from New York.

The killing of Governor Foss and one other man.

The destruction of the Lawrence armory, police station, City Hall and the cotton mills.

It was reported at the State House this afternoon that both sides in the Lawrence mill strike had agreed to arbitration. It is believed that the State Board of Arbitration will act.

DYNAMITERS' OUTRAGE PLANNED FOR TO-DAY.

The work of destruction was to be carried out to-day or to-night. The news of the plot leaked out and it was this that caused Governor Foss to take precautions to guard his life yesterday.

The costly residence of William W. Wood, president of the American Woolen Company, located on a big estate off South Broadway, Andover, just beyond the Lawrence line, is guarded by police and Pinkertons. President Wood's home is one of the buildings marked by the dynamiters.

President Wood took his family to Boston to-day. Meanwhile elaborate precautions were taken to protect the property. The house stands several yards back from the highway and is surrounded by pine trees.

Deadly Wire as a Guard.

A system of electric searchlights has been installed so that, at night, the house and premises can be as light as day.

Even more elaborate are the precautions taken to guard the mill properties in this city. In the towers and on the roofs of the mills sharpshooters keep constant watch, ready to shoot at the first indication of intrusion.

Barricades of wooden fencing and of cotton bales have been erected twelve feet high at the gates of the mill structures. Extra lines of fire hose have been laid to repel mob attacks.

But the most deadly precaution is the "live wire" line now strung around the mills equipped with powerful electric current. These are about the Arlington, Washington, Pacific and Atlantic mills.

This live wire is strung along posts, clear around the mills and a few feet from the walls. At night a current of 2,000 volts, more than is used in the electric chair, is kept on the wire. Contact means instant death. This electric deadline is the final inside defence against assailants in general and dynamiters in particular.

The members of the State Police and the Pinkerton men who are on duty here took stations at various sections of the city to-day to be on the lookout for the arrival of strangers in the city.

Information was obtained from New York that led to the belief that men had left there for Lawrence.

The information came to a representative of the AMERICAN from a man who is in a position to know the facts.

The second man who was said to be doomed is in Lawrence at this time, but is not a resident of this city.

The man was said to be very much frightened to-day. He kept out of the street.

Agitators Plan Violence.

The dynamite plan was adopted at the suggestion of some of the most violent of the agitators, according to the story that came to this city. It was argued that with the police and the soldiers against them, the strikers had no chance to win and that they could get justice in no other way than by a resort to force.

It was planned, it was said, to have all of the attacks made at the same time. Dynamite and bombs were to be used in the manner attributed to the dynamiters now being investigated by the Federal government throughout the country, following the Los Angeles revelations.

It was said that it would be no trouble to get sixteen dynamiters at once from New York. The men were to come here in the guise of mill workers and possibly as strike leaders.

Conspirator Told Story.

Governor Foss and the other man were to be trailed to their homes and dealt with there.

One of the men who attended the gathering of plotters, according to the story made public, became frightened and told what he had taken place. Then detectives were set to work on the plot and it is expected that arrests will be made shortly.

GOVERNOR DEFIES DEATH THREATS BY "BLACK HAND"

Governor Foss walked from his home at No. 11 Revere street, Jamaica Plain, to the State House, to-day, guarded closely by Officers J. V. Daily and M. J. Barnett of the State police.

"I'm not afraid— this 'Black Hand' talk does not worry me," said the Governor as he started for his long walk. "That's what it is—all talk. The police will take precautions, I suppose, but as for me, I shall go about my business just the same as usual."

The Governor left his home at 8:10 a. m. He was accompanied by William Jackson, his next door neighbor, and Mark Lines. The latter men are accustomed to make the long walk into town almost every day, and in all sorts of weather.

The two State policemen were stationed on the corner a few doors from the Governor's house. As he came out, they started ahead and walked about a hundred yards ahead of him and on the other side of the street for a block. Then they waited, crossed the street and followed a few yards behind him as he turned into South Huntington avenue.

Dudley M. Holman, Governor Foss's private secretary, said to-day:

"From six sources yesterday we got definite information, information that we could not question, that something of the sort of the thing that is hinted at in the papers is actually happening. Of course, we get letters almost daily telling us about cranks and such people who are coming here, but this was of a more serious nature.

"Our information came direct from sources we could not doubt. Accordingly I sent down to General Watrous for an extra man. I also communicated with Commissioner O'Meara and suggested that he have the home watched. He did so.

"We are taking every precaution, but do not believe now that anything will happen. When the people were that gave us the information I don't think it would be just to them to state. The information was of a character concerning which I do not think it best to go into detail. The general nature of it is correctly stated in the newspapers."

Home Guarded All Night.

The Foss home was closely guarded last night. A policeman was stationed on Severance street, in the rear of the house, and at the gate on Revere street. These men were relieved at midnight, and again at 8 a. m. to-day.

Mr. Jackson went into the Governor's home about quarter of eight, and Mr. Lines arrived a few minutes later.

When the Governor arrived at his office State police officers took places in the outer office and remained on watch, taking the names of persons who wanted to enter. Police officers from Station 13 guarded the Governor's house all day also, although it is not believed that any efforts will be attempted there when the Governor is not at home.

The State police reached the Governor's house at 7:15 a. m. Patrolmen George Dore and M. Kurtz of the Boston police force guarded the Governor's house last night.

An escort of State police has also been detailed to accompany the Governor on his way about the city. A picked squad of Italian patrolmen connected with the Boston police department are searching the North and West Ends for any of those New York Italians who are said to have recently arrived in Boston, and who are suspected of being connected with the plotters.

Members of the state police are in charge of a search in Lawrence for the Anarchist band. The Lawrence police and Mayor Scanlon have been asked to assist. Several State police officers went to Lawrence to-day, it is said, to aid the Lawrence police in an organized search of that city. Every suspicious person found on the street will be questioned and it is thought arrests will be made.

Double State House Guard.

Never before in the history of the State have such stringent measures been adopted to ferret out the authors of an alleged Black Hand plot.

Nobody, who is not known, is permitted to advance with striking distance of His Excellency. The guard about the State House has been doubled and a special guard stationed at the door of the executive chamber.

The Governor himself would have it appear as though he paid no attention to the alleged plot against his life but persons intimately acquainted with the Chief Executive of the State declared he is worried, not so much for himself as for

MRS. HEZLITT GOES FREE IN BOLDUC CASE

The case against Mrs. Hattie Hezlitt of Cambridge was dismissed by Assistant District Attorney Thomas A. Leveile when the five defendants in the Marie Bolduc case were brought to trial before Judge Sanderson in Suffolk Superior Criminal Court to-day. Mrs. Hezlitt was freed. Marie Bolduc was the Manchester, N. H., girl whose mutilated body was found December 22, at the home of Mrs. Jennie H. Shattuck, 81, 47 Woodlawn street, Forest Hills.

Mrs. Shattuck, Mrs. Hezlitt, Mrs. Aunie M. Reed of No. 271 Tremont street, Dr. John Ferguson of Manchester, N. H., and Miss Mary A. O'Neil, Dr. Ferguson's secretary, were first charged with murder in connection with the death of Miss Bolduc. Later the charges were reduced. Mrs. Reed and Miss O'Neil were charged as principals to illegal medical treatment on the unfortunate girl. Dr. Ferguson, Mrs. Hazlett and Mrs. Shattuck were charged with being accessories before and after the fact. It was on these reduced charges that the five were brought to trial to-day.

Lawyers in Conflict.

The First Sessions courtroom was crowded when the cases were called. Many women were present, including several from Manchester, N. H., where the victim lived.

A battery of four lawyers was opposed to Assistant District Attorney Lavelle. John Perkey appeared for Mrs. Shattuck and Mrs. Hezlitt. John Barry represented Dr. Ferguson and Miss O'Neil. Mrs. Reed, one of the two charged as principals in the case, had two lawyers, John F. MacDonald, chairman of the Democratic State committee, and John McCaig.

Opposition among counsel developed at the start. Attorney Feeney, counsel for Mrs. Shattuck and Mrs. Hezlitt, moved for separate trial for his clients, on the ground that their welfare had been affected by statements alleged to have been made by Attorney Barry, counsel for the Manchester defendants. Judge Sanderson denied the motion.

Attorney Feeney also asked for a separate counsel table. This was given him.

After the motion for separate trial for Mrs. Shattuck and Mrs. Hezlitt was denied, Assistant District Attorney Lavelle dismissed the charge against Mrs. Hezlitt. Mrs. Hezlitt did not leave the court, however.

Twelve Jury Challenges.

After the charge against Mrs. Hezlitt was dismissed, the trial of Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Shattuck, Dr. Ferguson and Miss O'Neil proceeded. A jury was drawn after nine challenges by the defence and nine by the government. The jury is as follows:

Foreman, Edward T. Bodie, jr., No. 872 East Broadway, South Boston, clerk.

William J. Hagerty, No. 80 H street, South Boston, grocer.

Charles E. Hammond, No. 4 Clapp place, Dorchester, expressman.

Abraham Pinkelstein, No. 7 Baldwin place, North end, real estate.

John L. Pennington, No. 417 Bunker Hill street, Charlestown, clerk.

Cornelius Bottjan, No. 38 Boston street, Dorchester, engineer.

William J. Williams, No. 55 Long Wharf, laborer.

William L. Welsh, No. 7 Trenton street, Charlestown, clerk.

Jake J. Riley, No. 126 Putnam street, East Boston, electrician.

Lambert J. Reynolds, No. 122 Colonel Stockade, piano tuner.

Minors Refused Admission.

The jury was sworn and the indictment against the four defendants were read to the jury by Clerk Manning, with the statement that the defendants had pleaded not guilty.

Judge Sanderson checked proceedings when a few minutes had passed by stating that "offensive testimony" might come during the trial. He said:

"It is possible that much of the testimony will be offensive to good morals. All minors will be refused admission to the court. Mature persons may use their own discretion."

The judge then instructed the court officers and doorkeepers to warn all incoming spectators to this effect. Though there were many women among the spectators none left the room.

Four Defendants Arise.

The four defendants stood while the indictments were being read, so the spectators had a good view of them. Dr. Ferguson, a man of stock build and of forty years or less in age, was dressed in dark gray.

Miss O'Neil, the youngest of the defendants, is twenty years old. She is a comely girl, of fine figure, which is well set off by a black suit.

Next to Miss O'Neil was Mrs. Shattuck in blue coat with tan neck piece. Mrs. Reed wore black silk.

The defendants sat in chairs next to the cage. Miss O'Neil sat next to Dr. Ferguson and Mrs. Shattuck and Mrs. Reed were next in order.

Mrs. Hezlitt, whose case had been dismissed before the trial began, sat on one of the spectators' benches.

EXPRESSMAN, 50 YEARS.

Henry Prew, senior member of the express firm of Earle & Prew, was tendered a complimentary dinner by a number of his friends and associates at the Boston Athletic Association. The occasion was his completion of fifty years of service as an express manager.

BENJAMIN W. WELLS DIES AT PURITAN CLUB

Benjamin W. Wells, former fire commissioner of Boston, died suddenly to-day of heart disease at the Puritan Club, on Beacon street. He was stricken suddenly and lost consciousness. Physicians were hurriedly summoned and worked over him without avail. He died shortly before noon. His body was removed to No. 62 Beacon street, where he lived.

Benjamin W. Wells was appointed fire commissioner in 1905, to succeed the late Colonel Henry S. Russell. Previous to taking the position he was superintendent of streets under Mayor Quincy.

Liked to Go to Fires.

After he retired from the fire commissionership, Mr. Wells would attend every fire for which more than one alarm had been sounded. Even when he was superintendent of streets it was said of him that he would rather study the big fires and stand all night out in the cold and wet when a four-alarm blaze was in progress, than to engage in any form of recreation.

Mr. Wells was fearless in his attitude and at one time requested the Finance Commission to thoroughly investigate his department as to rumors which were in circulation regarding it.

His appointment as fire commissioner was the first official act of the late Mayor Collins on his return from a trip to the South.

Native of Boston.

Mr. Wells was fifty-one years old. He was born in Boston. He received his early education at Hopkinson's School, and graduated from Harvard in the class of 1884. In 1886 he became a member of the firm of E. Williams and Company, a shipping firm established in 1825. This firm was changed in the South American and Dutch Guiana trade.

In 1889 he organized the United States Fire Signal Company, and became general manager and treasurer. He was a member of the Chamber of Commerce and director in the Hollis Mutual Fire Insurance Company.

Deputy Fire Chief Grady, when informed of the sudden death of the former fire commissioner, said:

"I am sorry. He was a man of big heart. The firemen will mourn his loss."

ENDICOTT, HARVARD MARSHAL THIS YEAR

To William Endicott, jr., member of the firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co., director in many corporations and banking institutions, and an active supporter of philanthropic and charitable work, goes the honor of being chief marshal for commencement day of Harvard college, this year. Mr. Endicott is a member of the class of 1887.

COPPER OFFICIAL DIE SIN BROOKLINE

Frank L. Soulmer, vice-president of the British of Cumbian Copper Co., died suddenly early to-day at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Edgerton Chichester of No. 46 Gloucester avenue, Brookline. He was making a short visit with Mrs. Chichester, arriving about a week ago. He was born in Philadelphia sixty years ago.

MINEDS TO GO INTO POLITICS

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 18.—After the Socialist element in the convention of the United Mine Workers had lost its fight for formal recognition of the Socialist party by the union, the Socialist members to-day secured the passage of a resolution providing for united action along political as well as industrial lines. The votes was 515 to 115 on the latter resolution.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO MURDER CHARGE

WORCESTER, Jan. 18.—Frank De-Sandis of Clinton, indicted yesterday afternoon by the Grand Jury for murder in the second degree in causing the death of Domenico Gubbi in Clinton, November 26, 1911, pleaded not guilty before Judge Hall to-day. His case will go on trial next Tuesday.

Governor Foss Walking Into Town Under Guard

PHELPS AGAIN IN DEATH HOUSE

Silas N. Phelps, the Monroe bridge murderer, was returned at 11 o'clock to-day to the death house in Charlestown State prison. He was taken from the death house January 6, at his request, when the 1911 Executive Council granted him a respite to January 20, and was put in a cell in the Cherry Hill section of the prison.

Colonel Hamlin, executive secretary of the council, notified Warden Bridges to-day officially of the lack of action by the council yesterday on Phelps's appeal for commutation. The warden had Phelps transferred back to the death house upon receiving this notice. This makes the second time that Phelps has been put in an execution cell, with the double death watch on guard over him night and day.

The return to the death house was the first notice Phelps had of the failure of his appeal to be acted upon by the Council. Warden Bridges, who attended to the transfer personally, sent to Phelps's cell on the Cherry Hill section and told the condemned man to prepare himself for the worst.

Phelps had been hoping for favorable news. His countenance took a most serious expression, but he made no comment upon the actual news itself. He told the warden he wished he could get funds to enable his wife to come down from her home in Monroe Bridge to see him once more before he is to die.

As a matter of fact it is considered unlikely that Mrs. Phelps will see her husband again. Funds could doubtless be raised, but the daily letters Mrs. Phelps has written to her husband say that she and the children are ill with severe colds. In addition to that, it is thought that Mrs. Phelps feels unable to undergo the strain of another farewell to her husband. The sad goodby to him on December 23, when he was brought to Charlestown from Greenfield jail.

Phelps's respite from execution will expire at midnight Saturday. Legally he may be executed anytime during the week following that hour during the periods between midnight and dawn. But executions never take place Sunday mornings at Charlestown prison, so Phelps will not go to the chair before Monday.

LOCOMOTIVE "JOY RIDER" IN COURT

WORCESTER, Jan. 18.—Ralph I. Jardine of this city, who on the night of January 3 took a locomotive out of the railroad yards, invited a few friends into the caboose and then ran it at the rate of fifty miles an hour on a "joy ride" to Webster, pleaded not guilty to-day in the local police court to the indictment charging him with endangering passengers on a railroad train. Jardine ran the locomotive into a "boat train" filled with passengers and the Grand Jury considered that phase of the case in acting in the matter. The case will come up for trial Monday. In default of $2,000 bail, Jardine was committed to jail.

DEATH IN CHAIR OR DIG FOR BODIES RICHESON'S FATE IN HOTEL RUINS

It is generally conceded that the death fault of Richeson has been sounded by the refusal of the Executive Council to agree to the confirmation of sentence in the case of Silas N. Phelps.

The execution of Phelps will pave the way for that of Richeson during the week beginning May 19. The expiation of Phelps' crime in the electric chair makes imperative a similar expiation of Richeson's crime. So says public opinion.

If Phelps had been spared there was a feeling abroad that Richeson would have to be spared also, though the reason and wisdom of the feeling were of doubtful origin. Two are vastly different men and murders could not be imagined, yet by some inexplicable agency they became linked and compared.

The pity for Phelps has been strong and clearly defined. Richeson, on the other hand, has been the object of the bitterest

S. P. C. A. GETS GIFTS IN MEMORY OF PETS

At the regular monthly meeting of the directors of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, held to-day, President Rowley reported for the last month 8,391 animals examined; sixteen prosecutions, with fourteen convictions; 136 horses taken from work, and 125 horses humanely killed. The society acknowledges bequests totalling $4,410, and including $25 from Miss Annie Belle Coolidge, "in memory of my horse, Ruby"; a bequest of $1,000 by George W. Boren, "in memory of two dogs—Tim, in loving memory of my little Tramp," and $25 from "A Humanity." One hundred and seventy-three branches of the American Band of Mercy were formed during December. The total number of bands organized to date is 32,045.

MINOT TELLS ABOUT PARK SQUARE LAND

The meeting at the Exchange Club under the auspices of the general committee of the Boston Real Estate Exchange, of which Hon. William A. Gaston is chairman, was largely attended. Vice-Chairman Stephen W. Sleeper presided and introduced Laurence Minot as the speaker. Mr. Minot called attention to the fact that Park square was a good thing to the business in if one could only get to it without any serious difficulty. The great trouble, he said, was in getting to the square, and if this matter was remedied the development would be rapid. He then told of the formation of the Park square Real Estate Trust.

BUSINESS WOMEN TO GIVE DINNER

The Business Women's Club will give a dinner at the club quarters, No. 12 Bosworth street, this evening. Invitations have been sent to business men who have expressed approval of the club or who might be interested in it as a valuable factor in the business life of Boston. The Samuel M. Crothers will give the principal address. Among those who have already agreed to be present are E. A. Wilkins, W. W. Hawkins, Howard Marston, Carl Dreyfus, Robert Wood and Charles Presser.

Deputy Chief of State Police George C. Neal believes the bodies of Susie Doherty and Annie Medevitt, the missing employes of the Revere House, are in the ruins of that hotel, and that the remains will probably be found in the debris which is thickest around the location of the rooms occupied by the women. Deputy Neal's statement follows:

"After hearing the witnesses, I believe Susie Doherty and Annie McDevitt, two of the hotel employes, are still in the ruins of that hotel. Both slept in the rear where the debris is now thickest and which is now being cleared away.

"The watchman and the porter both claim to have knocked on the doors of the rooms occupied by these women, and that no answer was received to a knock from one of them. There was plenty of time for all to get out, but the smoke was so intense, and these women, perhaps on account of their advanced age and infirmities, may have become confused as they were attempting to leave the hotel.

"Nothing has been heard of them since, and that is what causes me to believe they are still in the ruins.

"The fire started in the kitchen from

U. S. TROOPS ARE NEARING CHINA

PEKIN, Jan. 18.—The United States troops from Manila are expected to arrive on board the transport Logan at Chinwangtao to-morrow morning.

Captain J. H. Rees, military attache of the United States legation, has gone to Chinwangtao to meet them. He will conduct the main body of the Fifteenth Infantry battalion and other details to Tientsin on a special train. At Tientsin the men will be quartered in a large warehouse rented by the United States Consul.

A detachment of 160 men will proceed directly from Chinwangtao to take up their duty as guards along the American section of the Pekin Railroad from Tangshan to Lanchow, which has hitherto been patrolled by British troops.

LEGISLATIVE HEARING TODAY FOR GRAND TRUNK

An all-important step in the plans of the Grand Trunk to enter the port of Boston is taken today when representatives of the great Canadian transcontinental railroad appear before the Rules Committee of the House of Representatives on Beacon Hill, to tell why the petition of the Grand Trunk to the Legislature was not advertised for three weeks, as required by law.

It is expected that the committee, which is known to favor the coming of the Grand Trunk, will file its report recommending the granting to the petition, immediately after the hearing is concluded.

The report goes to the House, where action in the matter will be expedited. It is known that the majority sentiment favors the Grand Trunk. Resolutions adopted by the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange, urging speedy action, have already been sent to the House clerk.

President Pitzhugh referred to the work of the AMERICAN as particularly gratifying to himself.

"I am gratified with the work of the press, and particularly with the work of the Boston AMERICAN," said President Pitzhugh.

The Grand Trunk official was seen at the Hotel Touraine. He has taken charge of the work in Boston and has been in almost continuous conference with other officials of the Grand Trunk or of its lines in New England, the Central Vermont and the Southern New England.

Assisting Mr. Pitzhugh in Boston are General Assistant Cy Warman of the Grand Trunk, George C. Jones, general manager of the Central Vermont, and Judge Thomas W. Kenefick of Palmer, counsel for the roads.

"It seems to me the ground has been pretty well covered," said President Pitzhugh to a Boston AMERICAN reporter. "However, I am here with my official stamp on the job, as you may say, and that might be taken as an evidence that we are very much in earnest.

"Yes, our intention is to go right on with the preliminaries, the laying out of lines, etc., the moment authority is granted by the Legislature.

"While this request for a charter naturally comes to the people of Boston in the nature of news, it is not news to us in any sense, because the expansion of New England ideas has been a fixed ambition in my mind for years.

"The Central Vermont has, you know, never had any terminal. When we found it, it stopped at White River Junction. Later, through the acquisition of the New London & Northern, we secured an outlet on the Atlantic at New London, Ct.

"Even this did not satisfy us. We were still hemming, as it were, just on the edge of the great industrial and manufacturing fields of New England. It seemed to us that we ought to enter this field. Many things had to be done to prepare for this. In the first place we had to rebuild, practically double-track and improve the Grand Trunk main lines.

"It was necessary to spend a lot of money to bring the Central Vermont up to its present condition, but now, having accomplished all this, we are ready for the forward movement to Boston, Providence, Worcester, and possibly other points in New England.

Had Some Opposition.

"We have had some opposition, as you know, but with the press, the business interests and the people of New England making us welcome, we feel that the time has arrived to ask for the necessary legislation to let us down to the sea."

"What is your opinion," Mr. Fitzhugh was asked, "of the promising for the development of Boston harbor?"

"Well, harbor and terminal facilities are of the first importance," he replied. "No port can hope to attract business until it makes itself attractive. What I mean by that is that terminal facilities should be provided here in such a way that they can be offered on a basis that would make them attractive to any railroads looking toward Boston for an outlet to the ocean.

"Boston need have no fear about business. This country is only partly developed. Improved and scientific agricultural methods would almost double the yield of the present cultivated area of the American West and the Canadian West. And then the settlement is going on all the time, both above and below the boundary.

"We French with our rails eleven States and with the Grand Trunk Pacific will pass through every province of the Dominion of Canada.

"We believe that by building into Boston we could help Boston and all New England, and that it will work to the advantage of the Grand Trunk system."

Mr. Fitzhugh declared that the Grand Trunk has no intention of taking over the Boston & Eastern in order to secure an entrance through the northern part of Boston. Mr. Fitzhugh said that if the Legislature grants the petition, the Grand Trunk would immediately undertake the location of its lines and the actual construction of the railway at the earliest possible date.

Believes This Will "Cure Lung Troubles."

Consumption is a flattering disease—that is one of its chief dangers. Those who have it are rarely willing to acknowledge the fact.

If this trouble is present it is no time for trifling. Don't waste time in argument. If a so-called "cold" has long persisted; if a cough is present that keeps you anxious, or any of the symptoms are present such as fever or night sweats, weakness and loss of appetite, and perhaps some rising of mucus—do the sensible thing; take Eckman's Alterative, as Mr. Bettersworth did.

Bowling Green, Ky., R. No. 4.

"Gentlemen: I wish to say for your Alterative that I believe it to be a medicine of unequaled value for all Bronchial and Lung trouble.

"The Spring of 1908 I had a severe cough for six months. I tried all the medicine that my friends and doctors recommended to me, but no results came for the better. I had night sweats, and would cough and spit up every night until I got so weak I could hardly do anything. But at last James Deering, of Glasgow Junction, insisted that I try your medicine, which I ordered at once and began taking the same. In one week's time there was quite an improvement in condition, and after I had taken seventeen bottles I felt as well as ever in my life. I never wrote any firm or company a letter recommending their medicine before, as there are so many fakes that a multitude of genuine quality don't get credit or even a hearing.

"I desire the world to know that I firmly believe that your Eckman's Alterative will cure any case of lung trouble if taken before the last stage, and will gladly write personally to any one wanting information in regard to your wonderful medicine.

Yours Affectionately, BETTERSWORTH.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Rikes-Joyner Stores, Hall & Pottle, Irving Drug, and other leading druggists. Ask for booklet of testimonials from those it has helped. GRAND TRUNK GRATIFIED WITH HELP OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN

I am gratified with the work of the press, and particularly with the work of the AMERICAN.

I am here with my official staff, on the job, as you may say, and that might be taken as an evidence that we are very much in earnest.

Our intention is to go right on with the preliminaries, such as the laying out of lines and so forth, the moment authority is granted by the Massachusetts Legislature.

We have had some opposition, but with the press, the business interests and the people of New England making us welcome, we feel that the time has arrived to ask for the necessary legislation to let us down to the sea.

Boston need have no fear about business. We reach with our rails eleven States, and with the Grand Trunk Pacific will pass through every province of Canada. We believe that by building into Boston, we could help Boston and all New England, and that it will work to the advantage of the Grand Trunk system.—President E. H. Fitzhugh in a statement to the AMERICAN.

GRAND TRUNK GETS WARM WELCOME IN CITY OF WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Jan. 18.—Worcester is enthusiastic over the assurances given representatives of the Worcester Board of Trade by E. H. Fitzhugh of the Grand Trunk Railway that the extension of the proposed Southern New England Railroad from Dougias to Worcester will be constructed without delay as soon as authorized by the Legislature. President Edward M. Woodward, Secretary Herbert N. Davison and Louis H. Buckley of the committee on railroads and transportation of the board had an extended conference with Mr. Fitzhugh in Boston. According to President Woodward, the project of another railroad coming into Worcester is exceedingly popular. He reports receiving assurances that the Grand Trunk means business and will start things moving as soon as possible. The officials of the road are well pleased by the favorable sentiment manifest in Worcester.

BUILDING LABORERS STRIKE IN ROXBURY

Forty-two building laborers struck on a factory that is being erected by the Consolidated Engineering Company at Boston street and Columbus avenue, Roxbury, to-day, claiming they were not getting union wages as agreed upon. They claim that the union scale for excavating is thirty cents an hour, and that the firm would only pay twenty-five cents. H. W. Nutt, for the firm, declared that the union scale was only twenty-five cents an hour. The Teamsters' Union has struck in sympathy with the laborers.

SIXTY NORTH ADAMS WEAVERS ON STRIKE

NORTH ADAMS, Jan. 18.—Sixty weavers in the Hoosac Woolen Mills are on strike over a question of 28½ cents a week. They claim they cannot make as much as employes in similar lines at other mills in the city, owing to the lower speeded machinery at which they work. Several conferences with the mill officials have been without result.

THIRTY FAMILIES IN PANIC BY EXPLOSION

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Thirty families were thrown into a panic when a 200-gallon boiler exploded in the basement of the Le Roy apartments, No. 320 Madison avenue, early to-day, with a roar that was heard for ten blocks. Nearly every window in the building was shattered, as was those in the Rechumieau apartments next door. The debris caught fire and for a time threatened the building.

WIFE MURDERER RYAN GETS LIFE

Frank E. Ryan of Boston, who shot and killed his young wife, Georgiana, in Somerville, the day after last Christmas, to-day pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree in the East Cambridge Criminal Court and was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge McLoughlin.

Ryan is about twenty-seven years of age. He and his wife were estranged. She lived on Winter street, Somerville. He called there and induced her to start for a walk with him. Then he turned a revolver on her, fired five shots, four of which hit her.

The murderer was followed many blocks through the city by William Frank a high school boy, on a bicycle. The boy finally called a policeman and Ryan was arrested. Jealousy, unfounded, it was said, in connection with actions on the part of Ryan that caused his sanity to be questioned led to the crime.

RICHMOND HAS FIRE LOSS OF $200,000

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 18.—The most spectacular fire in the history of Richmond last night and early to-day destroyed the storage warehouses of Binswanger & Co. with a loss of $200,000. Every fire plug near the scene was frozen, and the firemen had to chop holes in the ice and pump water from the canal.

CROWE FOR "LARGER RECIPROCITY PACT"

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Harry J. Crowe, Newfoundland's "lumber king," is in New York to stimulate interest in what he calls a "larger reciprocity pact," which shall include not only the United States and Canada, but the entire British empire.

AMERICAN READERS ON RICHESON CASE

The impending fate of Clarence V. T. Richeson, especially since the Governor's Council refused to change its attitude on the petition of Miss Phelps for commutation, has brought forth a remarkable outburst of opinions on the case, particularly with reference to capital punishment. Readers of the AMERICAN in letters sent to the editor discuss the Richeson case from every point of view. Here are some of the letters:

Editor AMERICAN:

I wish to urge that the people of our State opposed to capital punishment be as free to express an opinion as those are who favor it. I am inclined to think from my own experience that they do not only one side—the brutal and sensational side—is given publicity. My argument is based on God's command: "Thou shalt not kill." If laws have been handed down to us through the ignorance of the ages it seemed just, shall we, with the enlightenment of the present, make criminals of innocent persons because of it?

If we have reached a stage of knowledge where we acknowledge a law is wrong, is not that the time to stop enforcing it? Should not that be deemed sufficient cause for change in law?

If we realize that the punishment we have promised a child for doing a certain act is unjust, are we going to inflict it a few times more just to make our impression respected? Does this seem in accordance with the teaching of our Master?

In all the walks of life we are much too ready to be governed by animal rather than spiritual instincts—to try to settle things by force. That was the spirit of the Spitzbergen. What would be its quality? The conduct of another?

I am inclined to think if we were to attempt to execute all the men that are responsible for injustice to women, and to do virtually murder them, we wouldn't have enough left to execute the law.

Why make an example of one? Why not all? Is it because we are going to inflict in members of his family whose lives are also said to be in danger.

DYNAMITE PLOT TO KILL GOVERNOR AND WRECK LAWRENCE MILLS

FOSS, CLOSELY GUARDED, WALKS FROM JAMAICA PLAIN TO STATE HOUSE AS USUAL

Mrs. Foss and the twins, Esther and Helen, were said to be much alarmed at the report the Governor's life has been threatened.

The first news of the plot was conveyed to the Governor by friends and came from three different sources almost at the same time. Unlike most of the Black Hand plots, where the intended victim is first warned by letter, Governor Foss received no communication from the hand as to their purpose and as a consequence he was inclined to treat the matter lightly. Confirmation of the report, however, caused him much uneasiness and the police were secretly put to work on the case.

Police Get News of Plot.

The information which reached the ears of the Governor is said to have been revealed by members of the gang bent on his assassination, to their friends in Boston. Some of these became alarmed when the plot was nearing its completion and fearful of the result, let the secret out. Prominent Italians of this city became aware of the facts and the information was communicated to the police.

Every person who has any knowledge of the affair and who is actively engaged in protecting the life of the Governor and his aides in their campaign of plotters has declined to discuss the matter.

Some of the police authorities admit that the most investigation of reports concerning anarchists and Black Hand operators is being pursued.

Judge Leverett of the Juvenile Court, who recently returned from Lawrence, also called upon Governor Foss and held a long conference with him, and it is expected that they discussed the matter of the plot against the life of the Governor.

Immediately after the information of the plot against the life of the Governor was received at the State House, State Officer Joseph Dellicker, who is usually on duty in the executive office as a guard for the Governor, was relieved and Police Officer Grady and Inspector Thomas Norton of police headquarters.

When Governor Foss left the Executive Chamber last night a bodyguard of three detectives followed him, intending to go to his home in Jamaica Plain. They intended to guard his residence during the night and accompany him to the executive offices today to make sure that no harm came to him.

Guarded by Detectives.

But Governor Foss upset their plans. He walked to the Hotel Bellevue, where he had dinner, during which time the three officers stood guard outside to prevent any strangers from approaching.

Later the Governor left the hotel and three detectives followed him to see that they were going to the Park street subway station. At the door of the hotel, however, Governor Foss called a taxicab, waiting taxi and gave the chauffeur orders to drive him to Cambridge, where he attended a meeting. The State officers then went to the residence of Governor Foss in Jamaica Plain and, being a detail of Boston policemen and officers assigned to guarding the house, they returned to Boston.

Six of the Italian members of the Boston police force who are now detailed to investigating anarchist and Black Hand plots reported to Inspector William Sawyer at Police Headquarters and immediately went out with him and worked under his direction.

These Italian policemen have a thorough knowledge of the Italian Black Handers and anarchists of this part of the country and also are acquainted with some of the inside workings of the organizations as well as with some of the men generally supposed to be leaders of dangerous bands in Boston.

MILL STRIKERS HOLD BIG OPEN AIR MEETING

LAWRENCE, Jan. 18.—Thousands of men and women strikers gathered today on the Lawrence Common in the greatest mass meeting that has been held in this city since the big textile strike began. The permission for holding the mass meet in a body.

Following the mass meeting it was arranged to have another parade, but the proposed parade today was limited to the business section of the city and strikers were prohibited from entering the mill district.

More than 500 German weavers joined the strikers today. They came out of the Washington, Pacific and Arlington mills. Because of the presence of the soldiers about all of the mills there was no disorder. It was estimated today that there were about 15,000 men out. There is no prospect of settlement in sight.

Ettor Appeals to Strikers.

Speaking before 2,000 men and women in City Hall today, Joseph J. Ettor, national president of the Industrial Workers of the World, urged them to hold fast and not to do the bidding of anarchy, as success would be theirs. He said that reports were circulating sometimes stories that the present trouble was only a "wop" strike, but that he could be nailed if his mulliners would remain out.

The occasion of Ettor's speech was a mass meeting of the strikers, bunting, members and speakers, names given the skilled employes in the mills, called for the purpose of doubling what action should be taken regarding the strike and to report those employes, all of whom spoke English, have remained out and others have remained away from work, others have been locked out and still others sorted occasionally since the strike. They number 1,500.

When the meeting was called to order everybody rose at attention. The large hall was filled. Many of those who accepted seats and standing room in the rear were strikers. They made no demonstration. Ettor said:

1,500 Vote to Stay Out.

"The bosses have tried to give the impression that this is a strike of foreigners and are circulating scurrilous stories about it in a manner that they hope the American people, so called, wanted to repeat at work. You people can tell them this is not true for you will join with the strikers. I would urge the strikers here to be loyal and true to the cause of organization and success will be theirs."

Alderman Scott E. Mahoney addressed the meeting. He said the English-speaking people in Lawrence were with the strikers, but wanted the latter to be orderly and they would lose the sympathy.

"Every window that is broken and any other damage that is destroyed must be paid for by the city," he said.

Ettor told of the sympathy which the city officials had for the strikers and pledged with them to behave themselves while marching in the different processions.

At this hour the 1,500 skilled mill operatives voted to remain out with the strikers until their demands were met by the mill officials. This announcement evoked much applause.

Cost $2,000 a Day.

The strike is costing Lawrence about $2,000 a day and this city is in mighty hard financial straits just now. The Mayor and some of the Aldermen went up to see Governor Foss today with a petition to borrow $500,000 outside the debt limit, because the money is needed.

The strikers charge that the financial condition of Lawrence has had a lot to do with the strike—that city officials were inspired to coax out the mill hands in the interest of the mill owners because the mill owners had certified Lawrence through her financial officials. The mill owners deny this and say that all they did for Lawrence was to pay taxes. Some of them, a little in advance.

A mob of 500 strikers formed in line today, shortly after 11 o'clock and paraded the streets. They carried flags and their shouts could be heard all about the mill district.

The parade started from Pant Chubbs Hall, at the corner of Mill and Short street and covered the principal streets of the city. The line was increased to a thousand men.

The big parade, in which 3,000 take part this afternoon has been sanctioned by Mayor Scanlon and the city government.

The mill district was practically under martial law, as it was guarded by militia, and every precaution was taken to prevent the collection of a crowd. But martial law was not proclaimed and it will not be if Mayor Scanlon has his way.

Will Preserve Order.

Law and order will be preserved in Lawrence even if the militia has to be kept here six months. This is the declaration of Mayor Scanlon, who added:

"Violence and vandalism will be prevented. The city can borrow a million and a half dollars in anticipation of taxes. With this amount, protection can be had for Lawrence citizens."

The greatest precautions have been taken to preserve order during the parade today, for which a permit has been granted.

The police and militia will also be on the alert during the open-air mass meeting called for later in the day.

The Armenian mill operatives are expected to join the strike to-day.

A feeling of unrest pervades the entire industrial section and no mill official knows how long he can keep his present depleted organization intact.

There is no disputing the fact that the situation, as far as settlement is concerned, is as dark now as it has been since the conflict began. While the City Government is not willing to admit that its efforts, also those of Dudley M. Homan, secretary to Governor Foss, and R. Francis Supple, secretary of the State Board of Arbitration, to bring about arbitration have gone for nought, yet the attitude of both sides does not favor this solution of the problem at present.

At the close of a meeting of Englesh-speaking strikers, held at Franco-Belgian Hall, the announcement was made by J. J. Mullen and C. J. Pothier, on behalf of the "Shoe Workers' Protective Union of Haverhill, that a petition was being circulated among the boot and shoe mechanics, asking for funds to help the strikers here. As a result of the special meeting, the committee promised an immediate grant of $600.

"Those who are engaged in the shoe industry," said Mr. Pothier, "and who are finding life difficult on $12 and $14 a week, are wondering how men who have been getting $5 and $6 a week have managed to keep alive at all. I take the responsibility of promising, on behalf of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union that, if necessary, every cent of its funds will be placed at the disposal of those who are fighting for living conditions in the textile industry at Lawrence."

Joseph Ettor made a strong appeal to the order English-speaking strikers for community of action until the demands of the men had been won, and warned them that something far more serious than two hours' pay a day was at stake. He said the strikers' action is part of a long-planned scheme to speed up the machinery and to gradually eliminate all but the youngest and most active operatives.

Answering the charge that the strikers had left work without notice, he asked how much notice had been given the employes and whether the new wage ing of the mill owners' intention to override the real meaning of the fifty-four hour law had not been received when the wage earners opened their pay envelopes on Friday morning.

The military authorities have been informed that a large band of armed Italians is coming here from Boston with the intention of fighting the troops if to-day's parade is interfered with.

Many of the citizens and especially business men, several of whom are in sympathy with the strikers so long as they commit no act of violence, regard it as rather dangerous to allow them to congregate in such large numbers as are inevitably to be on hand when there is any such thing as a parade on the program.

There are, it is many, not necessarily strikers, who are more than likely to start something in the way of violence, that it is believed that it would be very much better if parades and outdoor meetings were not held under the present circumstances.

There are many who are of the opinion that the present force of troops here is not sufficient, but Colonel Sweetser does not coincide with this view. He believes that he has a sufficient number of men on hand with the present situation, and he knows that reenforcements may be quickly had if they are needed.

His men are so disposed that they can be quickly concentrated at a given point in either one of the two military districts or in any part of the city in any other part of the city.

With labor negotiations all over New England coming to their old with voluntary offers of financial assistance, the strikers are to-day more confident than ever of victory.

Representatives of out-of-town unions have already pledged financial aid. One of these committees came in behalf of the labor unions in Manchester, N. H. Another came from Haverhill as representatives of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union, which, although not affiliated with the strikers' organization, has opened to tender financial aid.

The Haverhill delegation consisted of J. J. Mullen, secretary of the Union, and C. J. Jotter, treasurer. A special meeting of the Shoe Workers' Union has been called for Saturday evening to take action upon the strikers' request.

Need Financial Aid.

The strikers say they must secure financial assistance from other organizations if they are to win. They are confident, however, that the needed funds will be speedily forthcoming.

Many of the strikers have large families and their small pay enabled them to save but little money.

The Manchester delegation's offer to look after the children of the strikers greatly pleased the strike leaders. The delegates and the members of the Manchester unions stand ready to care for 500 boys and girls when they offer to take to their homes until the end of the strike. Many of the men live on farms and some have volunteered to take in as many as five children.

This offer may be accepted if the strike continues for a long period.

Strike Leader Joseph J. Ettor declared to-day that city officials had criticised some of his rabid speeches.

"I want to make it plain that no one around here is going to tell me how I am to talk," said Mr. Ettor.

"When it comes to speaking, I will say what I want to, and not what Mayor Scanlon or others want me to. They can't shut my talk. It's none of their business what I say.

"As for Mayor Scanlon, some one should tell him to stick to one side or the other. He told me the other day that he was with the strikers. The next day he began to talk about cook pots.

"Make it plain that we mean business in this here strike. I do not believe in violence and will do all I can to avoid it. But if there is any disorder the authorities will have to take the responsibility.

I have a right to expect YOU to help me raise that $600,000

YES SIR:—I have every right to expect it, if you are a man who is not too sceptical or prejudiced to be convinced. Because I am giving to the men of Boston right now clothing values such as I have never known to be offered before, and which I honestly believe will not be offered again for many a year. I am not doing this out of philanthropy. I am compelled to offer you sufficient inducement to make you buy now, because I must have that $600,000 at once. The loss I take is awful. But I'll not cry about it. I'm willing to bear the brunt of it, if you will be progressive and wideawake enough to at least come and investigate the frightful sacrifices I am making on these superb GEORGES Custom MODEL CLOTHES.

"A TIZ Bath, My Boy, a TIZ Bath! You Can't Beat It for Sore Feet, Corns and Bunions!"

Is this man a tender-foot? No. He is a joy-walker—one who uses TIZ and gets from the feet a happiness one never felt before.

"Sure! I Use TIZ Every Time for Any Foot Trouble."

When your feet are so tired they feel like stumps, when they ache so that they hurt way up to your heart, when you simply your feet along and it seems as though all the misery you ever had has settled in your feet, look at the happy TIZ man in the picture.

You can be happy-footed just the same. If you have corns and bunions that every body seems to step on, just think of this happy TIZ man. He had corns and bunions, too. This man used TIZ, and now he has no more tender, raw, inflamed, blistered, swollen, tired, smelly feet, corns, callouses or bunions.

As soon as you put your feet in a TIZ bath, you feel the happiness soaking in. It's like mountain ozone to lungs.

Nothing out but TIZ can give you this happy foot feeling. Don't accept any substitutes.

TIZ, 25 cents a box, sold everywhere, or sent direct, on receipt of price, by Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill. Recommended by all Drug Stores, department and general stores.

14 TAKEN FROM ROOF AT FIRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Firemen today effected a dramatic rescue of fourteen sailors from the roof of the Long Island Hotel, No. 187 South street, when the building was destroyed by fire. The sailors who were guests of the hotel were driven to the roof by the flames and were taken to the ground by means of extension and scaling ladders.

CUBA EAGER TO STOP TROUBLES

HAVANA, Jan. 18.—The Cuban government will do everything in its power to avert intervention by the United States, President Gomez, his advisers and friendly adherents among the Veterans' Association took definite steps to-day to head off the intervention which had been threatened by President Taft as a result of the political strife in the insular republic.

TWO KILLED BY GAS EXPLOSION

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 18.—Seventeen persons are suffering from severe injuries and two are dead as the result of a natural gas explosion which demolished a tenement house here.

YOU see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

STEAMER HITS OFF SANDY POINT

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 18.—A wireless dispatch received by the local maritime exchange from Captain T. P. Pratt of the Merchants and Miners' steamship Somerset states that the New York & Baltimore Transportation Company's steamship Chesapeake, which left this port yesterday for New York, has gone ashore between Sandy Point and Baltimore Light.

SHEIKS BOW TO KING AND QUEEN

PORT SAID, Egypt, Jan. 18.—Another spectacular feature of the travels of King George and Queen Mary in the Far East was a reception which their Majesties held here soon after their arrival to-day, for a number of Egyptian Sheiks. Clad in their picturesque native costumes the desert chieftains made obeisance before the King and Queen. Lord Kitchener, British Consul-General, was present.

COLD WAVE IS BOSTON-BOUND

A cold wave is due to arrive here tomorrow night or Saturday morning. The mercury will take a decided drop in the glass, and furs, earlaps and mittens will again be in demand.

The weather is very mild East of the Rocky Mountains and down as far as Texas.

AIRSHIP BOMBS DESTROY TURKS

TRIPOLI, Jan. 18.—The Italians p sued their aerial warfare against th Turks and Arabs between Alenara and th city to-day, when three aviators, armi with exploding bombs, made ascents ov the Turkish camp, dropping the explosi upon the soldiers beneath.

Terrible execution is reported to hav accompanied the attack.

Warned by previous attacks by aer planes, the Turks had erected shelters, b the bursting of the bombs destroyed the defenses and many soldiers were kill and wounded by flying debris. All of th military aeroplanes worked perfectly.

Digging in the Ruins of Revere House in Search for Bodies

Search was begun to-day in the ruins of the Revere House for the bodies of two women employes of the hotel who are missing. This picture, taken by a Boston American photographer, shows the point where the bodies are expected to be found.

some cause which I am at present unable to discover. It appeared above the kitchen under the stairs, where there is an open way.

"This afternoon I expect to have the engineer of the hotel and another man summoned here. This man claims he was talking to these two employes, but I do not know as yet when or where he was talking to them."

Secret Inquest Held.

A secret inquest was held at the State House to-day by Deputy Chief George C. Neal of the Massachusetts State Police to inquire into the Revere House fire.

Fourteen witnesses were present, among whom were Captain Stanley Harrison, proprietor of the Revere House, B. W. Carpender, one of the managers, District Chief Henry Fox, Lieutenant Victor Ritchie of the Boston department, Patrolmen William McDonald, Johnson, Murphy and John Merritt of the Joy street station, David Furman and D. C. Rhodes, clerks at the hotel, and several employes at the hotel.

Europe Sends Us Best Consumption Remedy

Endorsed by All Her Leading Physicians, and Has Long List of Successes to Its Credit.

Switzerland has lately been producing a remedy called Sirolin, which has taken the physicians of Europe by storm by its wonderful work in the treating of Consumptives.

So continued have been the successes, and so strong has been the praise accorded it, that Sirolin is now being imported into this Country in large quantities.

Sirolin has succeeded where everything else has failed because it is agreeable to the most delicate stomach, and aids the digestion to such a degree that the patient takes on weight rapidly.

It has also received praise on the strength of its being entirely free from harmful and habit-forming drugs, and never fails to relieve the most distressing symptoms even in the most advanced stages of the disease.

Additional information about Sirolin can be obtained in this Country from the Sirolin Company, 228 West Broadway, New York City.

All leading druggists are recommending and distributing Sirolin with considerable success.

GRANT NEUTRAL NOW ABOUT ARMY CANTEEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—In order to make his position clear about the army canteen, General Frederick D. Grant, commanding the Department of the East, United States Army, has issued the following statement:

"I would not oppose the restoration of the canteen to the army; I would not advocate it. I am neither for nor against its restoration. My position is neutral. Now the canteen has been abolished eleven years. The enlisted personnel of the army has changed and the enlisted men are adjusted to the condition of not having the canteen. Because of that I am neutral."

RADICALS THREATEN ENGLISH CABINET

LONDON, Jan. 18.—A cabinet upheaval is threatened by the radical Liberals as a result of the conduct of the foreign office. The chief displeasure is aimed at Foreign Minister Grey, and it has been suggested that Ambassador Bryce be recalled from Washington to assume that office. Complications over the Persian situation and the Moroccan situation have stirred up bitter hostility against the present Foreign Minister, and the opponents of the incumbent have the support of a number of influential newspapers.

Danderine

Stops Falling Hair and Destroys Dandruff

Makes the Hair Grow Long, Heavy and Luxuriant and We Can Quickly Prove It

If You Wish to Double the Beauty of Your Hair at Once, Just Get a 25 Cent Bottle and Try This

Surely try a Danderine Hair Cleanse if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair with little trouble and at a cost not worth mentioning—just moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few moments you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of Dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. It's exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

WOMAN PREFERS JUNGLE TO N. Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Living on a South African farm of 150,000 acres with her nearest white neighbor fifty miles distant, the Baroness Von Wolf, who is at the Hotel Walcott with her mother, Mrs. St. John Gaffney, wife of the American consul-general in Dresden, declares that she finds herself far more lonely in the heart of New York than in Southwest Coast of Africa.

"It's simply that women in New York have no real occupation; it's just a case of 'killing time' with most of the girls I know here, although I did have my days filled full with all sorts of new and interesting things down on our farm," said the Countess.

She was with Mr. and Mrs. Gaffney at Dresden five years ago, when she met the handsome young German officer, Baron Von Wolf, who had just returned from two years' military service in South Africa. They were married the following Fall in Dresden.

"Another beautiful thing about living in that wonderfully remote land is the total lack of conventionality. To make a round of calls on all our closest friends would take, I should say, about two weeks, traveling all the time and our residence at each place long enough to have the usual fifteen-minute society call.

"The distances are tremendous, but when one lives in a saddle one gets to love the stretches of country unbroken by a single foreign house.

"You ask, how do we while away my time? Well for one thing I have become an expert veterinary surgeon, and spend much time in caring for horses and sheep and cattle, to whom sickness and accidents come quite as often as they come to human beings.

"Social life is practically unknown, as I said before, down there," continued the Baroness, "but we amuse ourselves playing games and reading at night and the days are so full of the out-of-door things that the night comes on too quickly.

"Here I find the days drag because one has to do so many things one dislikes to do, just because it is the 'thing' to do. Oh, I could never be satisfied with the ordinary routine of social life again."

FOUR DIE IN MINE.

CENTRAL CITY, Ky., Jan. 18.—Four persons are known to have been killed and another is believed to be dead as a result of an explosion in a mine of the Central City Coal and Iron Company.

HAZING PRANK STIRS HARVARD

Everybody at Harvard is talking to-day about the hazing hoax played on Randolph Dugro, a freshman at Harvard, who was "ar-rested" by some of his fellow students last night in Fairfax Hall dormitory for the "killing" of a classmate named Frank O'Brien.

The plotters took George McFarland's fur overcoat and a few trinkets, and while Dugro was out of his room placed the overcoat and trinkets belonging to McFarland under Dugro's bed. McFarland and Dugro are roommates.

About 9 o'clock, while Dugro was deep in study in his room, he was startled by an angry murmur of a mob that clamored outside the door and demanded admittance. Dugro jumped to the door, flung it open, and there stood twenty-four men, who immediately rushed into the room and arrested Dugro.

Dugro, who at first thought it was some sort of a joke, began to take the matter in earnest. The invaders brooked no talk of a "joke," however, and with scowls and angry epithets they searched the room and found the "evidence" under Dugro's bed. By this time Dugro was really frightened and protested that the "fellows" were playing him a joke. Dugro appealed to his roommate McFarland and asked him to tell the fellows it was a joke. "Mac," who was in the plot, threatened to punch Dugro's head.

Finding not a friendly face amongst the crowd, Dugro grabbed his hat and ran for a friend, a football end on the varsity eleven. Together the pair came back and demanded who had accused Dugro. McFarland acknowledged he was the man, whereupon the big football friend of Dugro's offered to "lick" him.

The pair went into another room to have the matter out. There came a loud racket, and the mystified accusers of Dugro's banged on the doors and made other noises so that it appeared to Dugro that the battle in an adjoining room between his friend and his roommate was a real one. The combatants dashed themselves with red ink, and when the affray was over it was found that "Mac" was unconscious," and two physicians pronounced him "dead." An obliging janitor appeared in the role of a police man, wearing an old fire badge partly concealed beneath his coat. He arrested Dugro.

53 MEN DROWN IN SHIPWRECK

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Jan. 18.—Fifty-three men perished to-day when the British steamship Wistow Hall sank in plain sight off shore on the Buffers of Buchan, a jagged rock reef off the coast of Aberdeenshire. Two survivors of a crew of forty finally reached shore on a piece of wreckage after having been battered into unconsciousness by the terrific seas.

Lifeguards gathered on the shore and made repeated efforts to go to the assistance of the wrecked craft, but she went to pieces while the giant waves were hurling the lifeboat back to shore at every attempt to launch it. Thirty-five of the crew were drowned as soon as the ship was broken up and but five others survived in fastening themselves to the wreckage. Three of these were finally torn away by the waves and went to their death. Most of the dead were Lascars.

The Wistow Hall was of 2,129 tons and was built at Greenock, Scotland, in 1890.

200 ON BOARD STRANDED LINER

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 18.—The Hamburg-American liner Bethania is ashore in Chesapeake Bay near Hampton Roads. She has 200 cabin passengers on board. She is engaged in the passenger and freight traffic between Hamburg, Baltimore and New York. It is believed the Bethania's steering gear was damaged by the huge cakes of ice in the bay, and she was driven ashore by the high winds.

The revenue cutters Apache and Onondaga have been sent to assist the vessel.

HAMLIN FOR CIVIC FEDERATION HEAD

BREAKS UP A BAD COLD IN A FEW HOURS AND CONTAINS NO QUININE.

It is a positive fact that a dose of Pape's Cold Compound taken every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken will cure Grippe or break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach or limbs.

You distinctly feel the cold breaking and all the disagreeable grippe symptoms leaving after the very first dose. It promptly ends the most miserable headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, muscular catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Pape's Cold Compound is the result of three years' research at a cost of more than fifty thousand dollars and contains no quinine, which we have conclusively demonstrated is not effective in the treatment of colds or grippe.

Take this harmless Compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine made anywhere else in the world, which will cure your cold or break up Grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects as a 25-cent package of Pape's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

"BEST SERVICE IN BOSTON."

SHEPARD NORWELL CO.
Winter St. Temple Pl. Tremont St.

All the Tone-Quality of the $200 Instruments in This One at $59

—which is the spot-cash price, but which includes an outfit of 12 double-disc records (24 selections)

And you can pay for it at the rate of $5 a month.

The Offer:

We agree to deliver to any address in Boston one of these Grafonolas, together with an assortment of 12 double-disc records (24 selections) to be selected by us, or by you if you prefer. In addition we include, free, one "Demonstration" double-disc record.

The machine and the records will be sent on three days' free trial to any home in the city.

So confident are we that the instrument will please even the most critical, that we agree to refund all money paid by any purchaser who may not in every way be satisfied with the instrument.

An unconditional guarantee as to material and workmanship accompanies each instrument sold, the guarantee being signed by the manufacturers and countersigned by us.

This is the first offer of this sort we ever made. We do it now because we intend either to place a Grafonola in every home in Boston, or at least give every householder in Boston an opportunity to own one.

The Instrument:

This beautiful Grafonola "Favorite," the first instrument of this latest improved type to be offered at anything like its price, is probably the best that its price will ever buy. It seems pretty clear that the limit has been reached. As a musical instrument, it is all that any musical instrument can be, and all that those costing $200 can claim to be.

The cabinet is built of the choicest mahogany (or of beautiful quarter-sawn oak) polished like the costliest piano.

The "Favorite" plays any size of record—three at one winding, and can be rewound while running, the motor being a powerful triple-spring drive, absolutely silent and always positive and reliable. The tone arm leads the sound waves from the reproducer into the sound chamber, where it is amplified and poured out through the front, subject to reduction in volume by the partial or complete closing of the double doors. The start-and-stop lever is combined with a speed regulator lever, all in handy reach. The turn-table stands above the top of the cabinet when the lid is raised, admitting easy access to the record and needle.

It is an instrument that any man, of any means, may be proud to own and use for a lifetime.

The Records:

The outfit of records we have selected from the best selling and most popular of all classes, and includes the famous Sextette from "Lucia" and the equally famous Quartette from "Rigoletto," which ought to be extremely interesting to any of your friends who own talking machines and have paid $13 for those two selections alone. You are at liberty to make your own selection of records if you prefer.

In addition to those 24 selections, we will give you, free, one of our "Demonstration" double-disc records, which everybody admits is worth at least sixty cents of any man's money. All of these records are guaranteed to be superior to all others in tone, in surface and in durability.

They will outwear any other make of records almost two to one.

DEATH TO BE FATE OF RICHESON AND PHELPS

invective and denunciation, even from those who might have been expected to stand by him—by the ministry, by the press and the community at large.

Yet, in spite of this avalanche of contempt, it was apparent that the public mind expected Richeson would be allowed to pass the balance of his days within prison walls if Phelps' sentence had been modified. Now that Phelps' doom has been sealed it is taken that Richeson's has been likewise, it matters not what weight may be given to the petition for clemency by resourceful attorneys.

Many felt that even if Phelps' sentence had been commuted it should not have supplied a reason or excuse for changing the court's decree in Richeson's case. They argued that Phelps ought to be given life imprisonment and that Richeson ought to die.

Yet overwhelming as this sentiment has been it was obvious that a commutation of Phelps' sentence would have shrved as a lifebuoy for Richeson.

That is the way he and his sympathizers regarded the situation, and, now that Phelps has lost, Richeson has been robbed of his most promising argument. He practically has been deprived of his last hope.

It would appear that his lawyers' petition will be of little avail, even though backed by a volume of evidence and an imposing array of signatures in the appeal for commutation.

They promise to offer such a petition very soon. They expect that Governor Foss will receive it with the customary courtesy and formality as he undoubtedly will, but can they hope to accomplish anything with the members of the Executive Council who declined to interfere in the case of Phelps, a case marked by many extenuating phases?

No Chance for Argument.

The only sane and just answer appears to be in the negative. The Executive Council at the regular meeting yesterday held an informal discussion on the Phelps case which lasted nearly two hours. Governor Foss pleaded with the members of the Council to spare Phelps and to let him spend the rest of his life in prison.

The majority opposed commutation. They could not be convinced that clemency should be shown, or the court's decree changed. While no formal vote was taken the Council's attitude signified that Phelps must be electrocuted. Governor Foss said he had decided not to again renew his plea for Phelps.

Can the Governor hope to accomplish any more with a commutation petition in Richeson's behalf? Can he produce any stronger or more convincing arguments?

Can he offer arguments as convincing as he had in the case of Phelps? Were the circumstances so extenuating? Governor Foss has a pretty sound opinion on this issue now and so have the members of the Executive Council.

POLICEMEN GUARD FALL RIVER MILLS

FALL RIVER, Jan. 18.—The American Thread Company mills opened under police protection to-day, after a four-day shutdown, caused by a strike of 150 beamers, warpers and twisters, but there was not the slightest sign of trouble from the strikers, who kept away from the mills of their own volition. None of the operatives on strike returned to work to-day. The 950 other operatives who did start work are said to be greatly hampered by the continuance of the strike, the men still out all being skilled men.

CARDINAL HAS FINE WEATHER ON TRIP

Cardinal O'Connell and his suite are on the ocean to-day, homeward bound, and due in Boston a week from Monday, according to dispatches received to-day. The party is meeting with pleasant weather. Just before the Canopic sailed Cardinal O'Connell received many telegrams and messages of farewell, including a cordial dispatch from Cardinal Gibbons, Val, wishing him a pleasant journey and also expressing the farewell greetings of the Pope.

WOMAN GIVES SKIN FOR FIRE VICTIM

WORCESTER, Jan. 18.—Skin sold to Dr. Walter C. Seelye by a young woman whose identity is being kept secret was grafted on the arms and neck of Eugene Bonneville of Putnam, Ct., who was brought here for treatment of severe burns, it became known to-day. Bonneville was brought here and placed under the care of Dr. Seelye at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Basinet, relatives of his, after a previous attempt at skin grafting had failed. The second operation gives promise of being successful.

HARVARD EDITOR SINGS TO GIRLS

Rough is the road that lies before him who has literary aspirations, especially if he aspires to be on the editorial staff of the Harvard Crimson.

Robert Stone Gignell, '14, of the Harvard "gold coast," sat high on a limb of an old apple tree under the windows of Radcliffe, surrounding 500 delighted Radcliffe girls.

That's rough or not, as you may feel about it.

He was being initiated into the editorial staff of the Crimson.

"Plink-plunk" notes, and near-singing emanated from the lad on the apple limb.

Robert didn't sing the "plink-plunk" part; he did that with a banjo. The singstuff he rendered in his own baritone harytone, and, considering that he couldn't play a note any more than he could lift himself up by his bootstraps, he did a very fine stunt.

The girls knew he was coming. He didn't know they knew. They jollied him along with pertinent remarks until Dean Mary Coes came out under the apple tree. Either she has no ear for sweet music or she is not in sympathy with initiations. At any rate Mr. Gignell presently decided she didn't want him there. He slid out of the tree and departed, leaving the 500 Radcliffe girls wondering just which one of them he was serenading.

It was his initiation as membership in the editorial staff of the Harvard Crimson. At its semi-annual election these officers were elected:

President, Robert F. Duncan of Clinton; managing editor, George N. Phillips of Middleton Springs, Vt.; secretary, William Cheney Brown, Jr., of Hartford, Ct. The following men were elected to the editorial staff of the Crimson: Robert Brown of Mt. Clair, N. J.; R. S. Grinnell of New York, N. Y.; Robert Bacon Council of Boston and A. C. Smith of New Haven.

TIP FOR LEAP YEAR GIRLS

On girls, girls, girls, what seems to be the trouble? Can't you get courage enough to ask your William if he would care to support you for the rest of your life? If you can't, what is the use of having a leap year. That's what it's for. Its object is to give those young ladies who have bashful beaus a chance to pop the matrimonial question.

When William visits you to-night, suggest going to some motion picture show. Most all of them have a film dealing with love affairs of some sort or couple. When this film is thrown on the screen, just say "Oh, Bill, how I would like to be married like that couple. Wouldn't it be nice, if you and I were like that couple?"

Then you have Bill embarrassed. All that is necessary is to pop the question and Bill will answer in the affirmative. He'll be only too glad. Try it and see.

Remember, the first couple who come to the AMERICAN office and tell the Leap Year Editor they were married as the result of the girls' proposal, exhibiting their marriage license as proof, will be handed twenty-five dollars. The twenty-five will go a long way towards furnishing the flat or paying part of the honeymoon bills.

Great Northern Railway Gives Away—

Million Books

Thousands of people in the East interested in the possibilities of home-making in the Northwest did not have an opportunity to visit the Western Government land train, which recently toured the East, nor hear the Governors tell of the Golden Great Northwest. In order that everybody may learn of the splendid chances for making homes in Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon, the Great Northern Railway is distributing free, a million copies of its beautifully illustrated booklets describing these states.

These books describe the soil, climate and agriculture, and are written from men who have gone West and became independent. They are profusely illustrated with actual photographs and contain detail maps in colors. They tell what others have accomplished and show what you can do.

From them you can learn the locations for free homestead land in Montana and Oregon, where cheap land can still be procured in Minnesota, Washington and Oregon, and what North Dakota offers the general farmer. You can procure one of these booklets free. Simply ask for booklet on the state in which you are interested and for information about special low fares. Write today to

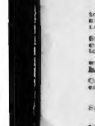
FREE TO THE DEAF

All Persons Suffering from Deafness or Catarrh will be Treated Absolutely Free Until Cured if They Begin Treatment on or Before January 20.



In order to prove to the public that what this remedy has done for others it will do for all persons suffering either from Deafness or Catarrh, we have decided to give away absolutely free a full and free prescription. Until Cured if they call on or before January 20.

No matter how long you have been deaf, no matter what has caused your deafness, no matter how many doctors you have tried in vain, no matter how many operations you have undergone, if you call on or before Jan. 20, you will be treated absolutely free until cured.

THEY WERE DEAF

Mrs. Mary N. Treanor, 80 Codling-ton Street, Providence, R. I., was deaf for a number of years and suffered from terrible head noises.

Mr. Chas. E. Snell, 186 Lester Street, Providence, R. I., was totally deaf, he could not hear a word, everything had to be written to him.

Mr. Samuel L. Flanders, Bridgewater, Mass., was so deaf he could only hear the loudest conversation.

Mr. Owen McSpirle, 8 School Place, Cambridgeport, had been deaf in his left ear for 10 years, and also had noises in his head.

NO CASCARET USER EVER HAS HEADACHE

A 10-Cent Box Will Keep Your Liver, Stomach and Bowels Clean, Pure and Fresh for Months.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and bad breath—always trace them to torpid liver, delayed fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Salts, cathartic pills, oil and purgative waters force a passageway for a day or two—yes—but they don't get at the poisons out and have no effect upon the liver or stomach.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poisons in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means inside cleanliness and a clear head for months. Ask any of the millions of Cascaret users if they ever have headache.

IRISH SOCIETY HAS A BANQUET

The annual Ladies Night of the Charitable Irish Society last night at the Hotel Brunswick proved to be one of the most successful ever held. It was attended by a brilliant company of three hundred.

Red carnations decorated the big table in the banquet hall. President Patrick O'Loughlin presided. Mrs. O'Loughlin sitting beside him. Seated at the head table were vice-president of the society Richard J. Lane and Miss Mary A. Lane, Treasurer Thomas F. Taff, Secretary and Mrs. John J. Keenan, Register of Deeds W. T. A. Fitzgerald, Assistant Corporation Counsel James H. Devlin, Jr., and Mrs. Devlin, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Dore, Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew A. Brickley and John A. Kiggen. All the men eated at the head table were officers or members of the committee of arrangements.

Welcomed by President.

The occasion was one of the strictly family affairs of the society, there being no listed speakers and no set toasts. The guests were welcomed by President O'Loughlin, while other members spoke briefly.

All the speakers made reference to the 175th anniversary of the society on March 17, which President Taft will be the guest of honor.

A fine musical entertainment was furnished with Mrs. Mary White Miller soprano, Miss Mary R. Tracy soprano, John J. Kelley tenor, Thomas Whalen baritone and Miss Mary H. Sheedy pianist. Miss Cecile C. White, Miss Mary Lane and Lawrence B. O'Connor acted as accompanists.

The Committee.

The committee of arrangements included Richard J. Lane, chairman; the officers of the society and John B. Doe, James H. Devlin, Jr., Thomas H. Dowd, Bartholomew A. Brickley, John A. Kiggen, W. A. DUCHESS GETS QUEEN'S FAVOR

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The unwritten law of the court of St. James that divorced persons, even those living apart under legal separation, shall not be received by royalty is to be repealed in the favor of an American Duchess, Her Grace of Marlborough, formerly Consuelo Vanderbilt. Intelligence to this effect has just been promulgated and caused the greatest sensation of the season in London society.

The rule was rigorously enforced under Queen Victoria, and although received in some specific instances under King Edward, was generally observed even by that exceedingly liberal monarch.

Under King George and Queen Mary it had been expected that it would be given its strictest interpretation, but it is now known that both King and Queen have commanded that certain exceptions be made and that the first of these will be in the case of the Duchess of Marlborough.

The American Duchess has endeared herself to all that is best in England by her perfect private life and her broad and helpful charities. Queen Mary in particular is said to be a warm admirer of the Duchess and has been made much use to the closest terms of intimacy.

The lists for court presentation have been closed, but it is understood that they include many Americans, despite the early reports that Queen Mary did not favor many toward visitors from the United States. It had been supposed the desire that few if any of them should be presented to her.

UNHAPPY BRIDE IS SUICIDE BY POISON

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Jan. 18.—Mrs. Paul Kellogg, twenty-six, bride of the adopted son of Dr. J. H. Kellogg, founder of a sanitarium here, killed herself with poison because her father-in-law opposed the marriage. Three months ago Dr. Kellogg called her Europe to spend the Miss Lenore Inman, newly afterward Paul, nineteen years old, left school and married Harris Gordon. The couple were denied a place in the Kellogg home and have been living in rented rooms.

REPORT ON MORSE IS SENT TO TAFT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The question of immediate commutation of the sentence of Charles W. Morse again hangs in the balance. Surgeon-General Torney of the army, who was consulted by Attorney-General Wickersham as to whether or not Morse's condition now seems desperate, made a report to the Attorney-General. Torney's opinion will be laid before the President and if he and seems convinced the President will commute the sentence.

SHOE MEN HEAR SUFFRAGE PLEA

The Boston Boot and Shoe Club gave the wives and other women guests of members a delightful entertainment at a luncheon held at Hotel Somerset. The chief guest of the evening was Mrs. Charles Park, secretary of the Equal Suffrage Association, who gave a talk on woman suffrage.

WILSON RAPPED BY WATTERSON

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 18.—That he had hoped to find to Woodrow Wilson another Tilden, but had found "rather a schoolmaster than a statesman," was the declaration of Henry Watterson, the veteran Kentucky editor and Southern Democrat, in a statement made here in connection with the break between Governor Wilson and Colonel George Harvey. The statement in full follows:

Regretting that I must appear either as a witness or a party to the misunderstanding which has arisen between Colonel George Harvey and Governor Woodrow Wilson, I shall have to speak with some particularity in order to be just alike to the public and the principals.

The conference between us in my apartment at the Manhattan Club was held to consider certain practical measures relating to Governor Wilson's candidacy. Colonel Harvey stood towards Governor Wilson much as I had stood during several years ago towards Mr. Tilden. This appealed to me.

Colonel Harvey had brought the Governor and myself together in his New Jersey home eighteen months ago and as time passed had interested me in his ambitions. I was hopeful at night find in Governor Wilson another Tilden. In point of intellect and availability I do. But I think Colonel Harvey made no mistake in his choice of a candidate, but the circumstance leading to the unfortunate ending of the ways he and them leads me to doubt whether in character and temperament—It may be merely in the habits of a lifetime—Governor Wilson is not rather a schoolmaster than a statesman.

Meeting Not Unfriendly.

I have from Colonel Harvey and Governor Wilson statements according to the memory of each touching what did actually happen and was spoken in the conversation named. These do not materially differ. They coincide with my own recollection. Nothing of a disagreeable kind—even of an unfriendly kind—passed during an interview of more than an hour.

From the first, however, there was a certain constraint in Governor Wilson's manner, the absence of the cordiality and candor which should mark heartily, confidential intercourse, intimating the existence of some adverse influence. His manner was autocratic, not fraternal.

I did not take this to myself, but thought it related to Colonel Harvey, and when Colonel Harvey, apparently overcome by Governor Wilson's austerity, put the direct question to Governor Wilson whether the support of Harper's Weekly was of like unfitness, and received from Governor Wilson the reply that it was not, I thought it was both surprised and shocked.

I had myself, on the train on last October, suggested to Governor Wilson that in view of the supposed environment it might be well for Colonel Harvey to withdraw somewhat the rather aggressive character of Harper's Weekly in the Wilson leadership.

Harvey Grievously Wounded.

I am not sure that I had not said as much to Colonel Harvey himself; but that Governor Wilson, without the least show of compunction, should express or imply an opinion, and permit Colonel Harvey to remain longer charged from the position of trusted intimacy he had given to this criticism, left in a little room to doubt that Governor Wilson is willing to make common cause with his political associates, or is he deeply sensible of his political indiscretion. Because it is but fair to say that except for Colonel Harvey he would not be in the running at all.

Colonel Harvey was grievously wounded. He had been fighting Governor Wilson's battle for many years and had identified his chief. Although I was given no reason to suppose myself included in the disfavor which had fallen upon Colonel Harvey, I naturally evinced a sense of something very much like indignation, but on reflection I could not rid myself of the impression that Governor Wilson had been receiving from Colonel Harvey those of his enemies of mine who seek to use his name and influence to make ends of their own, warming him against me and that my self-control carried in the same boat with Colonel Harvey.

Tried to Evade Publicity.

I am in receipt of Governor Wilson's averment to the contrary. I wish this had reached me earlier. I have during three weeks of newspaper inquiries refused to print a word on the subject, in the hope that no publicity might be required and that mutual understanding could be reached.

I have reason to believe that Colonel Harvey entertains a statement for the same cause and with the same hope. Not being any longer possible to suppress the matters at issue, this full statement which I make most reluctantly seems needful to a full and impartial knowledge by the public, but more especially by the mass and body of Democrats who are so earnestly seeking a leader in the coming contest.

(Signed) HENRY WATTERSON.

HOPE FOR THE DEAF

Remarkable Experience of Those Dead to the World of Sound With a New Treatment for Deafness That Is Wonderfully Efficient. 1 MONTH FREE.

PRONOUNCED HOPELESS—HEARS

Mr. John Blackman, who resides at 41 Hoffman St., Lynn, said to the writer: "I came over to this country from England, from ostarrh, and was pronounced hopeless by several well-recommended London specialists, who pronounced my case hopeless and said that I would grow gradually deafer until I became absolutely deaf. They operated upon me twice for nasal catarrh, but it was of no benefit. In fact, my left ear was almost totally deaf. There were all kinds of noises in my head. In the preamble, I might say I came to America and read of the marvelous success of the new treatment for deafness employed by the Cosmo-Chemic Physicians, and thought I would treat me. To my intense surprise and delight, I soon heard my watch, the noises subsided, I was entirely restored and almost equally well with both ears."

HEARING MUCH IMPROVED

Mrs. H. Custer, 57 Chandler St., Boston, called to tell you that my hearing has very much improved. I had been deaf for a long time, and had used a trumpet, but have been under your treatment 1 month and the clock tick 3 feet away from me. I am very grateful to you and know how to thank you for your treatment, I recommend you to everybody who has ear trouble. Yours truly, (Mrs.) M. Custer.

SCARCELY CREDITABLE

The testimonials published from time to time in these columns seem beyond belief, but they are easily verified. Those who testify reside in Boston and vicinity, are prominent people and neighbors. If you are interested for yourself, relatives or friends who are deaf, go and see these people, tell them to call on them what the New Treatment for deafness, employed by the Cosmo-Chemic Physicians has done for them.

Miss Selina Bellavia, 3 Pearl Terrace, Somerville, says: "An advertisement stated total deafness and ringing noises in left ear. The Cosmo-Chemic Physicians treated me and I am pleased to say that I can hear perfectly now."

Mr. F. Stacy, 72 Fulton St., Watertown, says: "I am glad to say the Cosmo-Chemic Physicians have restored to me and the noises that annoyed me vanished."

Miss Minnie Deane, 24 Isabella St., Boston, says: "I am pleased to say that my hearing is restored and noises that annoyed me for many years have been vanished."

Miss Lucy Nicholson, 30 Everett St., Everett, Mass., says: "Noises in the head, accompanied with deafness, have been removed. Thanks to the Cosmo-Chemic Physicians."

Mr. Thomas Lynch, 1 Dover Court St., Boston, says: "I was troubled for many years with deafness and head noises. I often wished I was dead. Your treatment has entirely relieved me wonderfully."

Mr. C. Wright, aged 82, 21 Edwin St., Dorchester, says: "The Cosmo-Chemic Physicians have done me a great deal of good. I can hear the watch tick 3 feet away. Miss M. Sullivan, 9 Dudley St., Roxbury, says: "My experience with the Cosmo-Chemic Physicians has been such that I recommend them to all who are afflicted with ear troubles."

TEN DON'TS FOR WORKING GIRLS

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Mrs. Mary A. Schneiberg, a former State factory inspector, has issued a decalogue for working girls. Mrs. Schneiberg was appointed by State Labor Commissioner Williams. Mrs. Schneiberg's commandments are:

1.—Don't let others think for you. Be independent in your thoughts and your actions will be independent.

2.—Don't let your sex interfere with the efficiency of your work.

3.—Don't be afraid to express your opinion as to the conditions under which you are working.

4—Don't be ashamed to be a workin' woman. It is a woman's right, and she should always be able to earn her own living.

5—Don't stop your intellectual growth. Your mind's development means your social and economic betterment.

7—Don't marry to better your economic condition. The majority of such marriages are failures.

8—Don't be indifferent to the great social problems, because their solution affects your welfare.

9—Don't forget that woman suffrage is not a privilege; it is a right denied her and she must struggle for it.

10—Don't underestimate your value to the community. You are one of the most necessary social factors.

An AMERICAN reporter called at Mrs. Schneiberg's home to obtain from her a word to the thousands of working girls in the city. He asked:

"Is this Mrs. Max Schaenberg?"

"No," responded a handsome woman of ghost thirty. "This is Mrs. Mary Schneiberg. My husband here," she added, pointing to a gentleman sitting in the room, "is Mr. Max Schaenberg. I am Mrs. Mary Schaenberg. In this house we have equal rights."

"That means that I have just as much right in this house as she," spoke up the husband, smiling.

Mrs. Schaenberg then said that she had been a student of sociology for many years and had been a settlement worker. She was glad to give advice to working girls in the shape of ten "points."

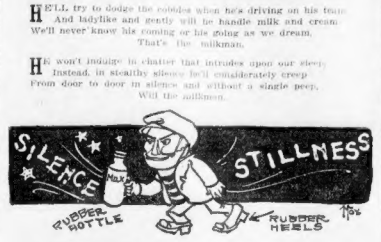
THE DENATURED MILKMAN

By MORTON BIRGE

O H, he's going to be nicer than he ever was before,
And he isn't going to massacre our slumbers any more.
He's going on his tippy-toes and never slam the door.
Is the milkman.

H ELL try to dodge the robbers when he's driving on his team
And ladylike and gently will he handle milk and cream.
We'll never know his coming or his going as we dream.
That's the milkman.

H E won't indulge in chatter that intrudes upon our sleep;
Instead, in stealthy silence he'll considerately creep
From door to door in silence and without a single peep,
Will the milkman.



A LOUD and raucous holler has arisen over the land.
The milkman's better nature has responded to demand.
His racket, like his product, will be bottled up and canned—
Bless the milkman!

SMITH GIRLS TO DO HOUSEWORK

Smith College girls are to be the first college students in Massachusetts to study household economics from actual house-keeping conditions.

Under a new plan announced by President Burton, Lawrence House, one of the campus dormitories, is to be set aside for a co-operative home, where sixty-two students will learn by experience all the details of cooking, sweeping and the thousand and one things that are responsible for woman's work being never done.

The board and room bills of the girls living in Lawrence House will be cut from $500 to $200. This will be a great help to those who are working their way through college, either in whole or in part.

It is also believed that young women who expect the announcement of their engagement to be made soon will rush to secure rooms in the new co-operative house.

The household economics course in most women's colleges is known as the "dishmood ring course," and the undergraduates to-day are saying that Smith will soon be offering one of the best opportunities for brides to struggle with the culinary art. It is expected that the applications will exceed the number of vacancies.

In addition to taking care of her own room, each student at Lawrence House will spend a certain amount of time each day in the general work of the house.

ARCADIAN CAMPING CLUB BALL TO-NIGHT

The second annual ball of the Arcadian Camping Club, one of the most popular among the campers at Silver Lake, will be held at Howe Hall, Huntington avenue, to-night. Novel features will be an attraction. Entertainment will be furnished by members of the club, which comprises well known amateur talent.

900,000 MINERS STRIKE MARCH 1

LONDON, Jan. 18.—A strike of 900,000 coal miners in England, Scotland and Wales will be called March 1, unless the British government prevents it by mediation. By a majority of 329,880, the coal miners of Great Britain have voted to strike on that date. The official figures of the ballot, which has been taken throughout the coal fields for the past fortnight, were announced today by the federation. The ballot stood 445,801 for a strike, 115,921 against.

The strike will not only mean a stoppage in all the coal mines of the country, but will tie up Great Britain industrially and cause great suffering, for at the present time there is only fuel enough on hand to supply the country for less than thirty days. Two admiralty has already taken steps to store supplies in the United States to keep the fleets in fuel.

"The Blood is The Life"

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are effected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood.

Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty cents in postage stamps to Dr. R.V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of known composition, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

THE SALE OF WOMEN'S SHOES

Trade has its paradoxes and anomalies. Here is one of them: Just as the weather makes heavy Footwear an imperative necessity, wise judgment says: "Mark Down Prices"—And We Obey. Get the matter clear in mind. We haven't reduced prices because the SHOES are seasonable and desirable—but in spite of those facts. The fitness and timeliness of the goods are merely coincidental with the inflexible law of modern merchandising, which says: HARBOR NO GOODS. In days soon to come SPRING SHOES will arrive. They'll tax the limits of the SHOE STORE. Therefore, we must be rid of the present stock. The logical time for us to do this is NOW. The special offerings include: "DOROTHY DODD" AND "GOLD MEDAL" SHOES, SLIPPERS, GAITERS, LEGGINS, CHILDREN'S SHOES.

"DOROTHY DODD" SHOES

COMMUTERS FIGHT FOR BETTER B. & M. SERVICE

Poor train service and conditions of discomfort and actual suffering which have come to a climax on the Boston & Maine Railroad with the present cold spell have aroused the anger of thousands of commuters and forced them to believe that their only relief lies in united complaint to the Railroad Commission.

Actuated by what they call "rotten service" and the discomforts they have to put up with, the citizens of Peabody have already taken the lead. They have complained to the Railroad commission because of the insufficient accommodations they get from the Boston & Maine between Peabody and Boston.

The commuters say their patience has been taxed to the breaking point. Hundreds of them, forced to stand on platforms or in the crowded, heatless coaches, have had colds or nose frost bitten.

Committees Blame Mellen.

The Boston & Maine service has become about as bad as conditions on the New York, New Haven & Hartford. The two roads are practically one and the same, and the commuters are laying the blame on the management and President Charles S. Mellen, particularly.

They claim that if the Boston & Maine did put on some decently up-to-date rolling stock conditions would be bound to improve, but that nothing of the kind would ever be done by President Mellen or anybody else until the Railroad Commission see fussy and need peremptory orders to both roads to better the service.

Commuters who have gone to the Boston & Maine officials say the only explanation they have gotten was to the effect that the system was tied up by the cold spell. This excuse has only served to add to their indignation. Never will the Boston & Maine and the New Haven roads are two of a kind and that it is about time both were properly denounced for the incompetence manifested on their patrons.

Many Suffer Through Cold.

Commuters on the Boston & Maine declared conditions were the worst in years, and had been getting worse since the first fall of snow this Winter. The complaints charged the railroad with using engines that couldn't get up steam on the suburban hikes, with far from adequate serving and with making passengers generally uncomfortable during the cold weather.

Commuters living in Peabody, Malden, Melrose, the Reading, Wakefield and other towns in this section say they have the best grounds for complaint against the Boston & Maine.

Threats were generally made that something would be done and if the railroad didn't give them better service they said they would appeal to the head of Peabody citizens and lay the whole matter before the Railroad Commissioners.

The climax came with the last cold spell. Men, women and young people have been packed like sardines in the cars, and even after the trains arrived. Frozen ears and frostbitten hands have been numerous. Time and again, as the cause of the poor service they have been getting.

Investigations made by reporters showed that during the rush hours in the early afternoon the trains were generally from two to nine hours late in arriving and leaving. The trains as a rule would make up within two or three minutes of starting time, and this caused a rush when the gates were opened. The cars were crowded to the limits, and in many instances women were forced into smokers to get out of the cold, while the men found standing room in the baggage cars.

"What you see to-day isn't a circumstance to what we have been experiencing, stated one man commuter at the station. "Waits have been much longer. The way that train I was on to Malden. Then they suffocation. I had to stand on the platform with many others. They put off some of the people hanging on to the gates of the coaches.

"Since the time we reached my home station at Malden, five miles from Boston, the train load was taken aboard three times. Think of that—half an hour to go five miles.

No Heat in Cold Weather.

"Coming in during the mornings it is as bad and even worse. The cars are as cold as can be. They tell us they can't get up steam on cold days. I think if the Railroad Commission ordered them to improve their engines and service they would find them the engines on the market which could get up steam in any kind of weather. The Portland and Maine service is being roundly denounced by many commuters. Both divisions were played on the list of being so generally bad in the cold weather that somebody looked for cause to pull the comfort while riding over their lines.

Within a few months the people of the mechanical handling the gates is also made, particularly by women. At the time when they had open after the time at which the train was supposed to start. Men and women would run past gateman and hop aboard the cars and even after the locomotive had moved ahead.

Those investigating conditions at the North Station observed several women jump on the moving cars, risking their lives in making the attempt.

Real Rush Service.

The Peabody, Salem and Danvers train scheduled to leave at 5:19 did not leave until 5:25. The gates closed at 5:22 but for some reason the throttle was not pulled until three minutes later. All five coaches did the five miles to Salem well filled.

The 4:49 train for Wakefield and the Reading, did not pull out until 4:51. The 4:45 train for Melrose and Malden, the announcer showed Cambridge and Arlington, and other places, and said the train was to go at 5:15.

The 5:12 crowd waited impatiently in the crisp air, and the train had not even made up its full complement at 5:15. The train did finally go away at 5:18.

The 5:27 for Melrose and Malden and points did not make up until 5:20, and was to leave at 5:25.

The 5:37 for Melrose and Malden managed to get out at 5:39, which was far better than its usual performance.

Catch the Train Ahead.

Two nights ago the 5:37 for Malden and Melrose and other points along the line was not made up at 5:40, and did not get away until 5:45, with people standing on the platforms and packed as far ahead as the baggage car.

A Malden woman commuter in discussing the poor service, said:

"For the past week the service on the trains running through Malden has been rotten. The 5:03 would not start to leave for half an hour after the scheduled time.

"Some nights we would come down to catch the 5:03 train and we would find that the 5:37 was just backing into the station. Then they would let us board her for seats. Most of the women would be unsuccessful in securing them and they would be obliged to stand.

"Why, some of them had to ride in the smoking car. Men who arrived late were compelled to ride on the steps. Many times those were packed as tight as sardines. Wednesday the service was better than that. So far this week has been beating the station anywhere from two to five minutes late."

That Tired Feeling.

A Boston business man, residing in Melrose Highlands, said:

"Last week's service was the worst it has been for many years. I generally leave Boston on the 5:37 train. Nearly every morning I would arrive at the station about 5:36 and would be obliged to run after the train to get on board. Then I would wait for two or three minutes and proceed along the route at so slow a pace that it would make one feel creepy.

"A Wakefield resident, also waiting in a crowd of one hundred people for the 5:15 train to be made up, said:

"This is rotten service. Every night for a week it has been like this. These trains are supposed to be made up fifteen minutes before the starting time. were ten twelve minutes past 5 by the company's own clock and the train is just coming in.

"Now it will be so crowded that many commuters will have to stand. There is one thing that should be stopped—allowing passengers to enter the shed after the scheduled starting time. Look at this train. He then rushed to catch his train. The train left three minutes late. One woman who had just been admitted rushed for it and if the brakeman had not been on the car platform, she would have been thrown to the ground.

SATURDAY

BOSTON SHOW TO BE BIGGEST EVER

By J. C. KERRISON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The Grand Central Palace Motor Vehicle Show closed in a burst of glory last evening. The Commercial Vehicle Show at Madison Square Garden this morning started on its last lap and the exhibitors commenced to consider the Philadelphia, Chicago and Boston shows, which follow close on the heels of each other in that order. The Boston show will open the early season, and it will surely be a big one, as the great majority of those cars which have been displayed in two buildings and under different auspices will there be one united display.

Shortly after 8 o'clock last evening, or, to be more precise, at 8:17, the Decatur, one and one-half, long truck, which for seven consecutive days has been on an official nine-engine-stop test carrying a ten and one-half of polarine, brought the test to an official end after having covered 1,139 miles.

The motor was, however, kept running all night long, and early this morning Frederick Brackett and Boston Manager Martin started the truck over the roads for Boston. It should arrive at Hotel Lenox about 2 o'clock this afternoon. This has indeed been a most excellent performance of an excellent truck that has attracted the attention of thousands at the Palace Show.

Praise Detroit Motor Wagon.

Another truck there which was noted considerably was the Detroit motor wagon which is handled in Boston by G. Frank Davenport of the Motor Mart. The little wagon seems to have a veritable mine of power and speed and its appearance here, coupled with the record made by it in and around Boston speaks volumes in favor of the small type of commercial vehicles and one which bespeaks the great advance that is being made in that branch, is that of the Knox Motor Truck Company which is represented in Boston by Day Baker. This is unquestionably the most extensive display of its kind ever made and although trucks of almost every known capacity, from the light delivery up to the great moguls such as are used by breweries and telephone companies, are being equipped with special bodies for special purposes, the Knox-Martin Company is likewise showing a line of electrics as well as gas cars, and it is recalled that this company is one of the oldest to produce electric motor vehicles for either commercial or pleasure purposes. In addition to its extensive line of trucks the company is displaying a chassis of the Flanders "20" and also carrying the same for delivery purposes, its Boston manager, George Philips, being one as a member thereof.

Dodge Has Three Trucks.

The Dodge Motor Vehicle Company is interested in three lines of trucks, the Pope-Hartford, Commerce, both gasoline, and the Waverly electric, and its representatives here are kept decidedly busy. Frank Neal and Mr. Phillips are serving with Day with the Baker line of electrics, the former for pleasure, and the latter, for business, and they are evidently both making good headway.

Several trucks have lost their individuality within the past few weeks, and instead of being known as the Rapid, Reliance, Randolph or Lausden, are now known as the G. M. C. trucks, this although it means G. M. C., and right here it can be said the line is better than ever. The electric member of this company is the Lausden, and it is known in a handsome "turnout."

The display which always appeals to the curious is that of the Sampson Dump body five-ton truck, which is constantly being operated under its own power.

One of the big Boston vehicles occupies a prominent place in the show and it is raised off the floor, so this allows the motor to be run. This makes the exhibit doubly attractive, for people can gather about it and see the motor in operation.

Frank Simpson is a graduate of the Bay State and is a part of the United States Motor Company.

Manager F. J. Tyler of the Boston branch directs their distribution in New England.

Big Mack Display.

The Mack Motor Company of Boston is interested in the display of Saurer and Mack trucks being made at this shop for the International Motor Company. Both trucks are shown in various capacities and various styles, from the special auto truck wagon to the seven-ton dumping body. The Saurer, it will be remembered, was the truck that made the trip across the country and the cost for operation was placed at $40, while the Mack is equally well known.

Among the light weight cars might be mentioned the two types of model H, Reo, the standard delivery body and the stake body. One such truck carried 1,200 pounds of baggage in the last Glidden tour, keeping pace with the 4-cylinder 1,400 miles under the most trying road conditions. Its capacity is 1,500 to 2,000 pounds. A. E. Ingersol, Metropolitan sales manager for H. M. Owen, handles these cars.

PIN MEN PRAISE TITLE TOURNEY

"Sposh" Callahan, manager of the Buick alleys in Lynn, comes to the front with twenty-two entries for the American Bowling Championship Contest, and says there are more to come. This shows how enthusiastic the bowlers are all over New England in taking part in the greatest battle of the candlepins ever produced in the history of the sport.

Among other matters "Sposh" writes that the Lynn bowlers think it is the best thing yet advanced, as the bowling game must have a champion to be in line with other sports, and the AMERICAN plan gives every bowler an equal chance in being the winner.

The Buick alleys have a seating capacity of 200, and it is the intention of "Sposh" to set aside two evenings of each week for his bowlers entered in the American Bowling Championship Contest.

Jack Monsey is in Line.

Among the callers on the Bowling Editor to-day was Jack Monsey and C. M. White of Worcester. They declared big interest in the bowling contest, and are going to work overtime in promoting the contest at their Commonwealth and Pearl street alleys.

No man in New England is more imbued with zeal over the grand furore of the candlepin game than is Mr. Monsey. It is on the hard efforts of just the sport as at present gained its big popularity in Worcester.

It was Mr. Monsey, too, who instigated the original rules governing the game, and White is also an old war-horse in the game, his father, J. P. White, having been the inventor of the candlepin.

The following letter received from Cupid Kelley of the Shamrock City League of Worcester, and P. H. McCann, manager of the Garrett alleys in that city, is of interest to bowlers, as follows:

Bowling Editor, Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—We have decided to find with the AMERICAN bowling contest that there hasn't started before. If the ten per cent. is taken, the pulse of the bowlers throughout New England indicate that the AMERICAN contest will be the biggest boom the candlepin game ever received in New England. There seems a peculiar affair that makes the better to engage in such contests as the AMERICAN contest affords, will show, and therefore the more greater the competition. The prizes are a magnet and the conditions couldn't be observed by any bowler. I defend the contest because it promotes the game and gives the fellow who thinks that he has ever rolled, Worcester bowlers welcome the contest. I assure you.

Very truly yours,
Shamrot's City Candlepin League of Worcester, Captain.
P. H. McCann, Manager.

Bowling Editor, Boston AMERICAN:

In reading the AMERICAN I noticed the bowling contest that you have started. I have four alleys here and some of the bowlers are going to take part. As Providence bowlers does not show in your contest, am writing to inquire if Providence may be represented in the contest.

Respectfully Yours,
Leonard J. Foster,
Proprietor Mayflower Bowling Alleys,
Providence, R. I.

On your request have added Providence town to the list. The more the merrier—nobody barred. Rush them along the entries.

Bowling Editor, Boston AMERICAN:

I want to thank you at this particular time for the great boom you have given to the game. Some of the bowlers around here say the contests are about to inaugurate will be a great success. We have some good rollers in our town and they will all enter.

Yours respectfully,
Jessie F. McGowan,
Proprietor Waverly Alleys,
South Framingham, Mass.

Berlin, N. H., in Strong.

Berlin, N. H., gets on the bowling map with a strong entry. C. V. Gilbert's letter to the Bowling Editor, Mr. Gilbert is owner of the City Alleys in Berlin, and assures us that the place is filled with good bowlers wishing to take part in the contest.

Paul Pohler rolled 1,091 in ten strings at the City Alleys last Winter, reported to be the highest score ever made in that number of strings. The other day a Berlin bowler ran up a string for 180, showing that there is some of the real goods in that berg. Yes, Berlin has been placed on the list of New Hampshire cities.

the entry list of the Casino bowling team of the Casino Alleys in that city, and is very anxious for the contest to start. In the list of the "Union Five" are the following: D. J. Ensign, J. S. Sharkey, S. Hermon, T. Williams, and D. Sunney.

Harry F. Moore writes in the interest of Portsmouth, N. H., and accordingly Portsmouth has entered a team in the New Hampshire cities. The Arcade Alleys are the city are prominently known, and Mr. Moore intends having the entry an important one from his place.

The twenty-two entries from the Buick alleys is lined up as follows: Bert Bonnis, P. Harrisson, J. Thompson, Cy Lucia, Arolfo Lucia, Walter Lucia, Tony Bonilla, H. White, Will Smith, Tom Delehanty, Bazoy Higgins, Ed. Mason, Joe Welch, "Sposh" Callahan, Tom Welly, Frank Smith, H. Ashburne, Frank Brannon, Joe Murphy, H. Nichol, and F. Bisson.

Pointers for Bowlers.

Here are a few pointers for the bowlers to keep in mind. The Boston AMERICAN Bowling Championship Contest has for its object the picking of a champion for the sport. To the winner the AMERICAN gives $100 in cash, or the amount in a trophy if the victor be an amateur. Other prizes will surely be announced.

In the preliminary or qualifying round five consecutive strings to be rolled. Each entrant has only one chance, when he has bowled the five strings he has finished for that round.

Each bowling in an entry will receive in return mail a card filled out certifying to the fact that he has bowled and this card must be filed by the alley owner or manager just previous to the bowler's going on to roll his five strings. The alley owner or manager will then, at the conclusion of the bowling, put the scores for each individual bowler of the five strings on the card, sign the same, and have two reputable citizens who have seen the strings bowled, sign their names.

Use the blank printed in another column. The highest pinfall will win the final. Twenty strings is the total, five strings rolled on consecutive nights.

Referees and other officials will be appointed for the elimination and finals.

Players residing outside of Boston can bowl on alleys to be selected in the following cities and towns:

Maine—Portland and Bangor.

New Hampshire — Manchester, Dover, Berlin and Portsmouth.

Vermont—Burlington, Barre and Brattleboro.

Massachusetts—Holyoke, North Adams, Springfield, Pittsfield, Worcester, Fitchburg, Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill, Lynn, Gloucester, South Framingham, Newburyport, Brockton, Fall River, Taunton, Middleboro and Provincetown.

Rhode Island—Providence, Woonsocket and Pawtucket.

Connecticut—Hartford, Bridgeport, New Haven and New London.

The editor of the Bowling Contest reserves the right to make any rules or conditions which may hereafter become necessary for the proper conduct of the contest, and gives notice that his decision on any question pertaining to the contest will be final and absolute.

Watch AMERICAN'S sporting pages for the entries and all the details of the Bowling Champion Contest. The rules will probably be printed from day to day. If there is anything you want to be informed about write to the Bowling Editor, Boston AMERICAN, Boston, Mass.

TRIO FINED $30 FOR ASSAULT

Frederick S. Thomas of No. 57 Fulton street, Neponset; Ray Fisher of No. 664 East Seventh street, City Point, and Jeremiah Sheehan of No. 608 East Sixth street, City Point, each about twenty-three years old, were before Judge Fallon in South Boston District Court to-day and pleaded not guilty to assault and battery on Charles Donkas, proprietor of a restaurant at No. 41 P street, City Point. They were found guilty and fined ten dollars each.

It was testified that Tuesday night the three men went into Donkas's restaurant, ordered sirloin steaks rare, medium and well done, French friend potatoes, dessert of all kinds, winding up with ice cream. When they had lighted cigars and cigarettes Donkas asked payment. They answered that it wasn't pay night. Donkas and one or two of his employes tried to prevent the men getting away. Thomas, it is alleged, picked up a stool and struck Donkas two or three blows on the head, cutting him so badly that the wounds had to be sewed up. The men then got out into the street. Sheehan, it was charged, threw a chair through a plate glass window in the chair striking an employe of the restaurant on the head, but inflicting only a slight injury. Donkas reported the matter to the City Point station and the arrests followed.

FISHING BOATS CLEAR OF ICE

A dispatch was received to-day at the Boston Fish Bureau from Curlings, N. F., to the effect that the fleet of sixteen Gloucester fishermen frozen in in the Bay of Islands had gotten free and sailed yesterday with a fair wind and fine weather.

The dispatch also stated that the fleet of seven vessels at Bonne Bay are still frozen in.

The United States government sent the revenue cutter Gresham from Boston and the Androscoggin from Portland to the assistance of the vessels.

ATTELL-BROWN MEET IN 10-ROUND BATTLE TO-NIGHT

ATTELL-BROWN IN BIG BATTLE

By JACK CONWAY.

Ring history may be made when Abe Attell, the featherweight champion, and Knockout Brown clash in a ten round bout at the National Sporting Club in New York to-night. This bout has attracted a tremendous amount of interest throughout the country and is sure to be witnessed by a record breaking crowd of fight "fans."

Brown will outweigh his opponent by from eight to ten pounds, and Jim Morgan is confident that his sturdy little wallopper will be returned the winner. But Morgan has been a poor one dopping out the outcome of pugilistic battles. If my memory serves me right, he told us that the K. O. kid was sure to take a fall out of Matt Wells and "One Round" Hogan. Both of these lightweights, however, gave Brown all the fight that he was looking for.

Attell isn't doing a great deal of talking as to what he is going to do to Brown. The featherweight wonder usually lets his record stand on its own merits. And it is a marvelous record that Till Able has made. Abe is first dozed ring tops back in 1906. He is virtually supreme in the featherweight class while there are few lightweight that have anything on Attell.

After Attell gets through with Browne he will go to the coast where he will start training for his twenty-round bout with Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland which takes place at Vernon, California on Washington's birthday.

If Brown defeats Attell he has promised Matty Baldwin a date. But we will not believe that Brown wants any of Matty's game until we see the two men in the ring.

There should be plenty of action at the American A. C. to-night when Jack Reid, the former national amateur heavyweight champion, and Jerry Gilfoy begin wars in the main bout of eight rounds. Reid will have an advantage of at least fifty pounds over the market champion and can get a "knock" that he will be finished the winner.

The Hafing heavyweight is a powerful fellow, and tips the beam at in the neighborhood of 200 pounds. He hasn't done any work in the squared circle for some time, but is reported as being in good condition. He has been doing a lot of work in the gymnasium lately under the watchful eye of Al Delmont, who is some fighter himself. Al has taught Reid a lot about the fine points of the game.

Gilfoy is well known to every fight "fan" in New England. He is an old timer at the game. Jerry is still able to hold his own with the youngsters and dances around the ring with the speed of a two year old.

The rest of the card is well balanced from the point of view of Cambridge meets Pat Lynch of Somerville. Both lads should put up a tough battle. Eddie Feeney of Cambridge should give Frank Mack of Revere a stiff argument, while Young Mitchell is out to win from Joe Ferraro.

Matty Baldwin should make Jack Reid round travel a pretty fast pace to last pair of nine Hathaways, which it Youngstown, Ohio, to-morrow night. Matty is out to win from Teddy Murphy a berth in the elite manner and in this way prove that he is one of the best lightweights in the country. If the Bunker Hill "Bearcat" takes the trip to the Coast in order to battle Ritchie in the big series of elimination bouts which Hanny Caffrey is to hold, he should be there with the best of them. He met a large number of boxers who have built up big reputations by "defeating" some good boys in short, no-decision bouts on their home town, but when it comes to a big go out on the Coast in twenty-round bouts where decisions are given they are usually found sadly wanting. If Matty can get by Murphy he should take fighters in the lightweight division, as he has proved time and time again.

Mike "Twin" Sullivan is getting tired of the roaming business over in the old country and he after a few fights, thirty-three years of age, and has been in the bowling game for the past fifteen years. The lighter of the Lawrence twins says that he will give Mike Gibbons and Fredd Lavin a call two weeks more in which to sign for a bout, and if neither of these will accept a meet with Jack "Twin" Sullivan for Jimmy Clabby. Jimmy outweighs Mike by over ten pounds, but Michael says that his cleverness will more than offset Clabby's extra weight. Jack "Twin" would like to get a crack at Al Palzer, who claims to be the best white heavyweight in the world.

Five Intercolonial Stars Who Will Play Against B.A.A.

KLING AND WARD TO MEET TO-DAY

John M. Ward the new president of the Pilgrims arrived in town early and early this morning ready for business. The old-time baseball star will remain in this city for some time, and will devote his time to making plans for the coming campaign.

Johnny Kling, manager of the team, and James R. Gaffney, the new owner, will arrive in town this afternoon. It is possible that several important deals will be put through when this trio gets together.

With Ward, Kling and Gaffney working in harmony this city should be represented by a winning team next season. All of these men know baseball and will leave no stone unturned in their efforts to place a winning team on the Walpole street grounds.

The new management is out to get hold of a couple of new pitchers if possible and one fast infielder. The chief weakness of the [illegible] was on the [illegible] Nationals batters had [illegible] the clouds and before the [illegible] ended the opposing team had [illegible] seven runs.

Want should prove to be the greatest hockey game ever played in this city. It is billed at the arena to-night when the B. A. A. team mixes with its deadly rivals, the Intercolonials. This is a game that has been awaited by most of the hockey fans in Greater Boston, and from all indications the attraction will draw a packed house.

This game has aroused more interest than any other game ever played. The teams are so evenly matched that it is almost impossible to pick the winner. Both teams have large followings, and they are the only ones that are picking the winners.

The game will also decide the champion ship seven of New England, and this alone will make the players fight with all their might. Each seven predicts victory, and as far as they go see the score should be very small.

The players will battle in two twenty-five minute periods, as there will be no [illegible] for the winner to score his superior. It was at first expected that the teams [illegible] a third game, but it was finally decided that two longer periods would [illegible]

The fact that the teams could not agree on local officials makes the rivalry [illegible] cials, and Jamie Garon of the Wanderers of New York and A. A. Rice of the New York have been chosen as the officials by the Arena management.

Both teams will be enabled to present its strongest lineup, as one team will not have an advantage in this line. Both teams are trained down to the minute and every player will be on hand to put up the hardest game of his career.

MEET ENTRIES WILL CLOSE JANUARY 20

Entries for the athletic meet at South Armory, Saturday, January 27, positively close Saturday, January 20. Reserved seats will be placed on sale at Wright & Ditson's, Wednesday, January 17. Registrar, in order to be entered in the meet, must be at 8 p. m. Wednesday, January 17. Any of the interesting events will be a relay between the first B. A. A. team and Harvard. It was expected that Brown relay team would run against Tech, but this seems to be impossible, owing to the fact that so many of the Tech team are out of Boston on their vacations. Holy Cross will probably be substituted. Classical, Worcester, Boston Mechanic Arts High School and the Cathedral Athletic Association have entered teams.

THIRTY RED SOX ON SPRING TRIP

With the first signed contracts in his possession President McAuley of the Red Sox began to-day final preparations for the spring trip of the team, which will begin at Hot Springs March 10. The Manicure Lady

She Tells the Head Barber All About the New Dances.

"THE world moves on in the latter time don't it, George?" said the Manicure Lady.

"Where did you read that?" asked the Head Barber.

"It was in a poem which was wrote by Lancelot Smith," replied the Manicure Lady. "It was one of the grandest poems which I have ever read. It began 'when you were indoors and I was a tot.' I always like to pick my conversation from the works of them great masters."

"I always thought your talk sounded kind of artificial," said the Head Barber. "It is like the lines of a musical show—one line of it reminds you of a line which you have read somewhere else."

"You don't say so," sneered the Manicure Lady. "Well, I don't like to argue much with a poor simp, but if you want to know it every line that you speak reminds me of a line that should never have been spoke at all. And the next time, George, that you try to call me for the way I talk, I am willing and able to walk out of the shop and be a regular striker. Let me tell you, George, whatever his name was."

The New Dances

"Well, well," said the Head Barber. "What is out it all? What if the world does move on?"

"I was thinking about them new dances," said the Manicure Lady. "I was thinking about how so many people say the world is getting so much better. The way I came to mention it at all, George, I was thinking about a dance that brother Wilfred took me and Mayme to last night. It was supposed to be a swell affair, because Wilfred got the tickets from the owner of the Pivot and Feed Gazette, that old trade paper that I used to tell you about in the days when Wilfred started working here. Wilfred explained that the owner was one of the swells, even if he had to write things about flour and feed. Of course, as Wilfred said, a long time ago, blue blood and bran don't usually mix any more than aristocracy and oats. But he said this particular old geezer was a sure enough member of the oldest-class school, so he told us to be sure and put on our best frocks and be sure to have them all boosted up by the time he was back to the house with the dress suit he had to rent.

"Well, George, everything went all right up to a certain hour. Mayme and me looked our best, which ain't so bad by no means, and after Wilfred once got into the dress suit he could of looked like a regular Beau Brummel, especially as the pants was kind of tight, like the kind Mister Brummel used to wear in Utica Jake's.

"Wilfred had started the old geezer off on a five spot, and the first nick he made in it was to hire a taxicab to the ball. We could have went there quicker in the tunnel, but Wilfred said a good beginning was everything.

"All the way to the dance he kept telling us to be sure and remember that we was mingling with real class, and to be kept urging us to step and not drag our feet. Mayme and me always thought our manners was good enough, and we never figured that swell folks had anything on us, and now we know it. Say, George, alongside of them me and Mayme was as goody goody as a bunch of young Quakeresses.

Oh, Shocking!

"Say, George, them folks which Wilfred has been telling us so much about —them swells that he always busted so hard—they was dancing a dance called the Turkey Trot."

"Was they dancing it?" inquired the Head Barber. "Did you and your sister dance it?"

"No, George," said the Manicure Lady, solemnly. "I think Lizzie or ever Mc and Mayme just sat back and was two little wallflowers. Maybe our manners ain't perfect, George, but our morals is testing over 400."

Arnold Bennett's great mystery story, "The Prince and the Plutocrat; or The Great Babylon Hotel," begins in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

RIPPING TRIPPING

"Ripping floor this," said the young man at the dance.

"Then why dance on my feet?" queried his partner.

How to Keep Young and Pretty—By

Mlle. Gaby Deslys

Article No. 19—Breakfast Evil

"I always drink hot water before breakfast."

"The mirror tells me if I am eating sensibly."

HERE are some extracts from Mlle. Gaby's article today, in which she gives valuable advice on the proper way to eat:

"No one ever was beautiful who kept on eating too much.

"Breakfast should be a very light meal.

"The best meal of the day should be dinner.

"Late suppers find no place in the plan of the girl who wants to be pretty.

"The only time you should eat late at night is when you are sleepless or suffer from insomnia.

"Spinach is one of the best things you can eat.

"Fruit and nuts are very nutritious.

"Pure olive oil, two or three times a day, helped me to take on weight very quickly.

"Dandelions are splendid for the complexion."

IF I ate what is called an American breakfast every morning I should never be able to keep on writing these articles, for I should be a fit subject for the beauty doctor or the hospital.

Grapefruit, cereal, steak, potatoes, corn muffins, griddlecakes with butter and syrup, baked apples and cream and coffee, and rolls! All this for the first meal.

I had read about American breakfasts, but I never saw one until I got on board ship, and I have not recovered yet.

The American breakfast is responsible for the middle-aged figures nine times out of ten.

No one can be really beautiful who indulges in eating too much food, even if it is a fashionable custom.

Breakfast should be a very light meal, and bear no resemblance to dinner.

I've been told of the day should be dinner, which ought to be at noon, or luncheon is necessary, then early in the evening, about 6 o'clock.

Late suppers find no place in the plan of the girl who wants to be pretty.

The only time you should eat late at night is if you are sleepless or suffer from insomnia. Then a little warm milk or a few crackers eaten slowly will often help you to sleep.

Of course, if you are an actress, you find yourself very hungry after an evening's performance, and then some light [illegible] is allowable.

Just a little cheese or some nourishing food is really necessary to comfort you.

Spinach is one of the best things that you can eat; a diet of spinach has an almost immediate effect on the complexion. I and carrots are very good, and onions are also very healthful, only alas, I loathe them, and of course nobody who is on the stage is popular if he or she indulges in this very salubrious vegetable. I never eat meat more than once a day, and I would not think of touching it for breakfast.

In Paris I never drink anything but spring water because the ordinary water is very impure, and every day I take a cup of very hot water with a little bit of lemon juice in it about half an hour before breakfast.

When I look in the mirror, I can tell by the color of my complexion whether I am living on a sensible diet. Frequently, although I know what I should eat to keep in my beauties and my looks, I don't practice what I preach. Then I have to pay for it.

There is always a bowl of fruit in my room and a jar of dates and prunes; often I go without luncheon and just eat fruit and nuts, especially on days when I am having early dinner, or a particularly trying time at the theatre.

A heavy meal always makes me sleepy and tired, but fruit and nuts are very sweetening and they give you a wonderful feeling of lightness.

Dandelions, raw or boiled, are splendid [illegible] you can eat as much as you want and all the celery that you want, without fear.

A few years ago when I was very thin, I was ordered to take pure olive oil two or three times a day between meals, taking about two tablespoonfuls at a time. This helped me to get fat very quickly, and I am told it is very good for indigestion, especially if you take the oil right after meals.

In France we are great believers in salads; they are not only good for the complexion, but to me no dinner is really complete without them. Over here you put far too much vinegar in the dressing usually. Three parts vinegar to one part oil is the way good salad dressing should be mixed. There is a great deal of art in making the good salad dressing, which seems to be rare over here, is made by most of the French housewives from wine.

The Surprising Cousin

A Complete Short Story

"PSHAW!" said Mr. Barnaby Tolchard when he had re-read the last few lines of the letter.

"Tush!" he remarked, gazing at the signature contemptuously from underneath his eyeglasses.

"Bah!" he ejaculated finally, and, with cleanly threshing the communication back into its envelope, he proceeded to devour his breakfast. Presently his wife joined him.

"Letter for you," growled her lord, indicating a missive beside her plate.

"For me?" exclaimed Mrs. Tolchard, examining the postmark. "Who on earth can it be from?"

"Maybe there's some clew inside," retorted her husband, with a sarcasm born of cold grief.

"No, George," said the Manicure Lady, solemnly, "I think Lizzie or ever Mc and Mayme just sat back and was two little wallflowers. Maybe our manners ain't perfect, George, but our morals is testing over 400."

"Arnold Bennett's great mystery story, "The Prince and the Plutocrat; or The Great Babylon Hotel," begins in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

RIPPING TRIPPING

"Ripping floor this," said the young man at the dance.

"Then why dance on my feet?" queried his partner.

"I see—I see," commented Mr. Tolchard.) "I gave him some good advice and told [illegible] I trust not unfeelingly, that I need not extend him further business privileges. Hence—very hearty one—which he had just devoured, we having been unfortunately about to commence dinner when he arrived. I write in order to warn you—hem-hem."

"I hope he won't come here," remarked Mrs. Tolchard timidly.

"Send," retorted her husband, "he is coming here! He's had the nerve—gall! I believe they call it in his country—to write and say so," and he passed over his letter.

"Well, I never did!" exclaimed Mrs. Tolchard, sounding the top note of her limited scale.

"No, and I don't believe I ever [illegible] husband, with a hollow. "Cousin or not, he'd better not show up at my place of business—and I'm [illegible]."

"He's Coming Now"

Mr. Tolchard rose, and put back his chair with an emphasis which scraped off a piece in strip of [illegible]

"Now don't [illegible] any more of this ill-natured [illegible] his name is —?"

He stopped suddenly and his jaw dropped.

"Blow me," he whispered "if I don't believe he's coming up the garden path this very minute!"

Mrs. Tolchard rose fluttering, her hands instinctively at her back hair, a short, spare man, with a sandy, gotee beard, was stepping briskly up. He wore a broad-brimmed hat tilted knowingly over his right eye, and he cast quick, alert glances about him. His clothes, without being absolutely shabby, were by no means smart.

"He has got the family nose," murmured Mrs. Tolchard.

There was a brisk knock. Mr. Tolchard, with thunder on his brow, went to the door, for they kept no maid.

"Mr. Barnaby Tolchard, I surmise," said the visitor, with a rising inflection.

"That is my name. I suppose you are Mr. Hosea—"

"Hosea," interrupted the other calmly "Hosea Q. Haslope, late of Powder House, now emigrated from Essex to Derry-dene and thus sorter cousin to your respected wife. Reckon I'll step right in and see her."

And before Mr. Tolchard could raise any protest the stranger coolly slid past him and stood, hat in hand, in the little dining room. He held out his hand to Mrs. Tolchard with a pleasant smile.

"Uncle Amos's daughter Jeannie, I can see. I expected to find an older lady. Glad to see you, cousin, shake."

Mrs. Tolchard caught her husband's eye glowering at her over the intruder's head, but she held out her hand with a sullen limpness.

"Won't you sit down, Mister"——

"Mister is a misfit," he put in quickly, "I'm Hosea to a hair's-b—s, if you please," and he sat down.

"And you've come to England to look up your family connections, Hosea?" asked Mrs. Tolchard.

He turned to her again and his smile reappeared.

"That's so. I've seen Cousin Fluter at Margate; the two old maids at Greenwich, the queer lot at Swansea, an' your brother, Jeremiah, and now I've come to see you."

"Ha!" exclaimed Mr. Tolchard, with a striking suddenness. "Well, I've got to be off, so I'll say good-bye, mister. You won't be here when I get back, I reckon."

Hosea Q. Haslope hesitated a moment, then he glanced quickly from husband to wife.

"Well," he said slowly, "I had thought of asking you to put me up for a night or two. You see"——

The Cold Shoulder

"Can't be done," interrupted Mr. Tolchard, hastily. "We don't take in lodgers at no time."

"I wasn't asking for lodging, exactly," said Mr. Haslope quietly. "Rein' a sorter relative"——

Mr. Tolchard put on his hat with emphasis.

"Look here, Mr. Haslope," he said, "I'm a plain man"——

The other gave a quick nod of assent.

"Or'nary we call it in the States," he said gently.

"I'm a plain man," repeated Mr. Tolchard, in louder tones. "And I'll be frank with you. You may be the man you claim"——

"I can prove it in five seconds."

Mr. Tolchard waved a large hand. "I'm not questioning it," he said. "But then, you never met you forerunners, nor none of you before this morning—and yet you expect us to—to give you bed and board at a moment's notice. How many of the others did it?" asked Mr. Tolchard suddenly.

"Not one," replied Mr. Hosea Q. Haslope calmly, and Mr. Tolchard gave a chuckle of triumph. The little man picked up his hat with a little sigh. "Very good, I am obliged to you for allowing me to rest here awhile. Good bye, Jeannie. I do believe you would have made me more welcome had you dared." Then he turned to Mr. Tolchard. "You are more outspoken than your brother-in-law, Geoffrey, was, but you evidently mean the same thing. Perhaps, however, you will not object to [illegible] the address of Cousin Naylor. He is the next member of the family on my list, and the last upon whom I wish to call."

Mr. Tolchard burst into a loud horse-laugh.

"Cousin Naylor! Oh, you don't need any address, for here he comes!"

There entered a brisk young man, with a good-natured laughing face. He wore a small cap of a curious check pattern, upon which Hosea Q. Haslope looked approvingly.

"Hallo!" exclaimed this breezy arrival "just rolled on my way to the station—oh, beg pardon. Didn't know"——and he drew back apologetically.

"It's all right," said Mr. Tolchard maliciously. "Here's a gentleman as wants to make your acquaintance. Let me introduce you. Mr. Hosea——Hosea Haslope of Amerikey. Mr Edward Naylor, of Dorsetshire, England—sort of ninth cousin of yours, I guess."

"That so?" cried the young man. "Glad to meet you, sir. I like American. Never been there, but I read Ameri an stories [illegible]. Put 'em all over."

"Shake," returned Mr. Hosea Q. Haslope gravely. "And you live in Devonshire. I've heard of that part."

"Two hundred miles from here—thirty-four bob return," interjected Mr. Tolchard "Pretty south — Pilgrim Fathers — often thought I'd like to visit that spot," continued Mr. Hosea Q. Haslope musingly. "Say, why don't you?" cried Mr. Naylor. "You like the pressed? Come down with me—Lottie and I can put you up—both, for good. Your arrangements are made, I dare say."

An Invitation

"You're married?" queried Mr. Haslope. "Ha—then, six months ago," with a beaming smile.

"What are you running about up here for, then?" asked Mr. Haslope sharply.

"Business. Happy Home Exhibition—picking up tips, you know, stoves—plumbing—tools—kitchen stuff. Must keep up with the times."

Mr. Hosea Q. Haslope nodded approvingly.

"You're a store of your own?"

"Ra—then! You'd better come—unless you've made other arrangements."

Mr. Hosea Q. Haslope looked at Mr. Tolchard.

"You don't mind my thus leaving you rather hurriedly—er—Barnet?"

"Barnaby Tolchard is my name," said that gentleman. "I'd advise you to go by all means."

"Thank you—er—Barnaby," said the little man, "for all you have done for me. I never smelt better breakfast bacon in my life. You must forget to write at least twice a week," and he was gone.

"Well, I'm"—— spluttered Mr. Tolchard. "Of all the"—— And that young fool has took him off home, without knowing a thing about him! Why, he'll simply rob that poor young couple!"

Mr. Tochard was still mournfully prophesying when there arrived a third visitor, a tall, lanky, yellow-faced individual, in a violent hurry—and a huge motor car, driven by a statuesque liveried chauffeur, with an absolutely expressionless face.

"Excuse me," he said, breathlessly, with an intonation which stiffened Mr. Tolchard in a moment. "But I am chasing a friend of mine—Hosea Q Haslope—is he here?"

"Gone left for Devonshire an hour ago," replied Mr. Tolchard, marvelling at the inquirer's evident opulence. The rings on his long, tapering fingers must be worth a fortune! The lanky man threw up his hands.

"Devonshire! Great smoke!" he exclaimed somewhat inappropriately. "He's played the shake action on me once more! What town has he made a break for, sir?"

"Barnstaple," replied Mr. Tolchard. The stranger's face darkened upon him. "What has he done?" he whispered.

"Done!" Then he launched like a pistol shot. "Shake, if the man doesn't take me for a sleuth. Wal, I reckon it's natural under the circs. No, sir, I am Virginius N. Blaschock, of Chicawgo—guess you've eaten some of my pork before now—at British prices. Hosea is a friend of mine. Every time I've been to get next to him these four days—but Hosea always was a hustler, and he's shook me every time."

"But, excuse me," panted Mr. Tolchard for the long man was already in the car. "Strange this isn't the man you want—I hardly fancy"——

"Little sandy runt—chin-trimmings, and bakedapple face like mine—eh?" interposed Mr. Blaschock sharply.

"Yes—yes," gasped Mr. Torchard. "He—he works on a railway when he's at home, doesn't he?"

Wanted, An Heir.

"Shocks!" exclaimed Mr. Virginius N. Blaschock. "Hosea's been playin' it on you. Works on a railway! Wal, I should surmise! Why, man, he's president—president of the Inter-Ocean Palatial—biggest railway in Amurrica. Works! Gee! Why this is his first holiday for thirty years! He slipped off quietly, and I reckon he's grubbing around here in the old country to find somebody he can leave his millions to—for Hosea's a bachelor. And, I suppose, instead of giving him the merry ha-ha, you've handed him the frozen? Sent him off to Devonshire. Oh, you're the wise guy!"

The long man finished up with another volley of oaths, and with a hoarse preliminary cough the car glided away.

Mrs. Tolchard had heard all, and she came forward to meet her husband as he stumbled blindly in. He had gathered something of the truth from Virginius N. Blaschock's whirling flourishes of speech.

"Don't speak to me—don't speak to me," he muttered brokenly, and forthwith collapsed. Then, with grim determination, he penned himself and wrote to "Cousin Fluter at Margate, the two old maids at Greenwich, the queer lot at Swansea," and his brother-in-law Geoffrey.

A few months later some dozen Hoses were further embittered by full-page advertisements in the daily newspapers, announcing that Mr. Edward Naylor had acquired magnificent premises in the West End of London and was about to open a huge establishment on the American plan, where you would be able to buy anything from a tin-tack to a traction engine.

"Yankee capital," said Mr. Barnaby Tolchard bitterly. "Swallering up everything—and the poor small shopkeeper has to starve."

FAIR EXCHANGE

"You have captured one of our generals," said the South American commander

"Yes," said the leader of the insurgents, "we have."

"We will exchange two colonels for him."

"No."

"Then two colonels and a captain."

"Nothing doing. You can have him, however, for a can of condensed milk."

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

Lysander John Discourses on the Subject of Relations

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

LYSANDER JOHN APPLETON, His Commissioner-General of the United States, always hands down his most vital decisions on the question of kin when the Christmas bills come due.

There is something about this holy season that puts him in the mood for doling the subject justice.

"I find," he said, looking wisely over his glasses, "that when a girl thinks she can sing and can't, her dancing seems to blame. The girl who pounds a piano, and believes the result is music, is guilty only of contributory negligence. Her adoring parents should not be permitted to escape."

If any thought of his own daughter's execution of music entered the Kin Commissioner-General's head he gave no evidence. A just judge must occasionally pass sentence on himself.

"After a woman's kin have visited her she seems to have less faith in her husband than she had before their visit. His ends will please act accordingly.

"It is every wife's complaint that her husband is not more cordial to her kin. I suggest that he meet them at the station with a band, and keep them standing on the station platform two hours while he delivers an address of welcome on behalf of the state. When they arrive, he, in a fit of welcome and no long on behalf of the city before they enter his door is a good plan, and once in the house an address of welcome lasting at least forty minutes on behalf of himself will not only convince them they are welcome, but will make them so grow they may not come again.

"If a man has a pretty sister-in-law it becomes an easy matter for him to cure his wife of the complaint that he isn't cordial to her kin.

"A man should not be accused of lack of progress because he is not interested in the discovery that Mars is inhabited. Perhaps experience teached him that it will be just his luck to find kin there."

Lysander John heaved a sigh. It has often occurred to him that his own problem was at its minimum in the olden times when travel was attended by greater peril.

"It is perfectly proper to find fault with the toilettes of kin: Those from whom we receive cast-off clothes and those to whom we give them.

"Not more than one of a woman's kin can visit her at a time without her husband looking crowded. Two of such visitors on at the same time makes him eligible to Lonesome Land.

"Borrowing from relatives is a bad thing, and employing them is worse. It is these two kin habits that have reduced the Family Tie to the position given a teapot with too spout knocked off."

Lysander John sighed again.

"I find," he said wearily, "that I am expected to decide if mother's opinion or daughter's must be beloved the most as between us fathers. I am of the opinion that is not. Mother, being a woman, is biased in favor of her own daughter. Every time a father is as flat as if a rock crusher had gone over it.

"Father, therefore, is a better judge of daughter's best beloved than mother. However, I do not expect this decision to have any weight with the mothers."

WOMEN, AVOID OPERATIONS

Many Unsuccessful — And Worse Suffering Often Follows. Mrs. Rock's Case a Warning.

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will show how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when often it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with displacement. I could not be on my feet for long at a time. My physician treated me for several months without much relief and at last advised me to go to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did so. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. ORVILLE ROCK, R. F. No. 3, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has restored the health of thousands of suffering women. Why don't you try it?

EVIDENCE OF DESPERATE DESMOND'S CRIMES. COMMITTED IN TRIPOLI TAKEN BY RECKLESS HARDY SHAVUS, U.S.A.
THEY MUST BE A FAKE. THEY CANNOT PROVE THEIR CHARGES

As the lovers, mounted on fleet camels and in company with Reckless Hardy Shavus, the famous war correspondent and moving-picture man, hurry over the desert to the Italian camp, they are pursued by Desperate Desmond. The lovers have not noticed his presence, and the scoundrel means to give them an unpleasant surprise, as you may guess by looking at the receiver in his hand.

All ignorant of Desmond's pursuit, the lovers are happy in being together once again, and also in the knowledge that the many strange places, and his advice to generals has led to the sudden ending of many wars. But Reckless Hardy Shavus now gives a start of surprise. In the finder of his camera he sees the figure of Desmond! And Desmond is in hot pursuit of the little party.

Reckless Hardy Shavus is a man used to surprises. His career as the greatest living war correspondent has led him into and his advice to generals has led to the sudden ending of many wars. But Reckless Hardy Shavus now gives a start of surprise. In the finder of his camera he sees the figure of Desmond! And Desmond is in hot pursuit of the little party.

It takes Shavus but a moment to recover his composure. With a quick movement he gives warning to Claude, and here instantly turns around and covers the now surprised villain with his trusty six-shooter. With all his acumen, Desmond had not guessed that the innocent-looking camera of Shavus would prove his undoing. It is all off with the scoundrel's plan now, and he knows it.

Securely bound, Desmond is led before the Italian general. When questioned as to his guilt, the villain declares scornfully his heart that he has never made the slightest attempt to harm either Claude or Rosamond! Nothing like a ready good lie in Desmond's opinion. Notwithstanding the villain's denial, Claude, trusting in Reckless Hardy Shavus, is quietly confident of convicting him.

"I'm the boy!" cries Desperate Desmond, "but I'm no moving-picture actor." The critical moment has come, and Shavus throws his announcement on the screen. Desmond does not believe that the production has any real evidence against him, so he regards the show as a joke. However, he is quite likely to meet with another disagreeable surprise. So be sure not to miss the great series of pictures to-morrow.

Foiled!

ONCE upon a time he had been a writer of novelettes, but he found ink so repulsive that he dropped the matter—the writing, not the ink—and became a tramp.

Still, even on the weary road the old, laughing tendency could not be shaken off, and when he called at a small villa one day he was feeling as he did in former times.

A cold-eyed lady, with a shrewd eye, opened the door, and there was no sign of approval in the glance she bestowed upon her visitor.

"Madam," said he, "I am the exiled King of Catagonia. I was abducting in yonder forest, but in some way became separated from my retainers, likewise from gun and purse. I am footsore and weary, and would fain tarry awhile and partake of refreshment at your most hospitable board."

"Sire," replied the lady, "we have nought in the house worthy to set before a king, but I pithee tarry awhile, so that I may unloose my hunting dogs. They will escort your majesty to yon gates."

But his majesty was gone—gone far away!

THE WAY TO LEARN

A Scotch student, supposed to be deficient in judgment, was asked by a professor, in the course of his examination, how he would discover a fool.

"By the questions he would ask," was the prompt and highly suggestive reply.

"AN auto for ourselves" exclaimed Fanny. "Isn't that lovely, Jimmie?"

"I don't know that we ought to accept presents from any one now—Robert," said Jimmie.

"What's that?" asked Stafford.

"I said that I wasn't sure that we should accept presents from any one NOW —Robert," repeated Jimmie, uttering the Christian name of the millionaire distinctly.

Jimmie's Mistake

"Just a minute, please," declared Stafford, controlling anger which seemed to flood him for the time being. "To my wife I am 'Robert.' Yes, to my wife's sister I am Robert, also, but to you I am Mr. Stafford at all times."

Jimmie saw his mistake.

"You call me Jimmie," he replied, "You don't even call me James."

"So I do," said the millionaire to his employe, the ex-third assistant shipping clerk.

"But that's different," interjected Fanny.

"How?" asked Jimmie.

"In every way," she told him.

"I don't see it," said Jimmie, weakly. He felt as if he had mussed things terribly, but was game.

"You're right," Stafford said finally, "I have been entirely too familiar and I beg your pardon. From now on I shall be more careful to address you as Mr. Gilley."

"You needn't rub it in," said Jimmie.

"Don't intend to," protested Stafford, the wine getting more control over him. "'S perfectly right. One gentleman to another; Mr. Stafford and Mr. Gilley."

He again turned to Virginia. His eyes were brighter and his face more flushed.

Instinctively Fanny understood why Virginia was sad. She turned away from the sight of the man and signaled Jimmie to be starting from the room.

"It's nearly 1 o'clock," said Jimmie. "I must be at the office at 9. Do you mind—Rob—Mr. Stafford, if I am late an hour in the morning? If I don't get a good night's sleep my brain doesn't work well."

"I don't mind," laughed Stafford, "but McLaughlin, the superintendent might object. I never interfere with the heads of my departments, Jimmie—I mean James —I mean Mr. Gilley. Good night."

"Good night," called Fanny.

"Good night," said Virginia with a ring of weariness in her voice.

The door closed behind the young people.

Stafford turned, staggered to Virginia and crushed her almost murderously in his great strong arms.

She was helpless. She could not cry out for aid. It was his right.

WHEN she was able finally to release herself from her husband's arms Virginia started for her room.

"Not yet; not yet," called Stafford.

"I'm very tired, dear," she pleaded, "and I think I'll tell you good night."

"You won't leave me now; you can't leave me now," he said, the shadow of a frown coming over his forehead.

"But, Robert, dear, I am worn out. Please let me say good night," she begged.

"I know what is good for your fatigue," he said. "Champagne."

"Don't touch it now; please, Robert, don't touch it now."

"Why?"

"You have had too much already."

"I'm all right," he protested. "I can take twice as much as I have taken already. See?"

He crossed to a button in the wall and rang for Oku.

"For God's sake, Robert, don't drink any more. It isn't good for you."

He leaned against the wall to steady himself.

"Don't you worry about that," he said. "I know what's good for me. I want that wine and I am going to get it." #

Oku entered.

"A bottle of champagne, Oku," he ordered, "and two glasses."

A Party Together

Virginia had buried her face in her hands.

Stafford remained near the door leading to the hall. Oku returned with the wine promptly.

The famous Potash and Perlmutter ("Abe" and "Mawruss") stories by Montague Glass are a regular feature of the Sunday AMERICAN

As the servant bowed his way out Stafford, unseen by Virginia, turned the lock in the door and slipped the key in his pocket.

"If you must have the wine, Robert, take it to your room and say good night," she said when he began filling the glasses.

"Drink alone?" he asked, "and with you here, so lovely to-night? We will have a little party together. Just the two of us—just the two of us."

"Oh, for the love of God, don't."

"Why?"

"I remember the last time."

"When was that?" he asked.

"About a month ago."

"What of it?"

"Don't you remember?"

He tried to clear his mind of the fumes of the wine, but could not.

"No," he said. "But what's the use? There is no time like the present. I shall drink to your pretty eyes. My, but you are lovely to-night."

Virginia, driven desperate, darted from her chair to the door leading into the hall. She found it locked.

"That isn't a pretty thing for you to do," he remonstrated. "You shouldn't run away from your husband. So you won't do that, will you?"

He went to her and took her hand and led her to the table where the two filled wine glasses were.

Both rings had formed under her eyes and in the eyes was a look of fear and horror.

"HERE'S to you, sweetheart!"

Stafford raised his glass and drained it.

Her glass remained untouched.

"You did not drink," he said.

"No."

"Ar'n't you going to?"

"No."

"Oh, go on—just one glass." He refilled his.

"No."

"Why not?" he demanded.

"I don't wish to."

"Suppose I want you to? Would you take it then?"

"Now, dear," pleaded Virginia.

"Would you?"

"I don't like it; I don't want it, and even YOU could not make me touch it," she said, with what spirit she could command.

"I couldn't, eh? Perhaps you would like to see me try?" he asked.

"Please don't speak to me like that, Robert. It hurts me dreadfully. If I didn't know that it isn't yourself who is talking——"

"Not myself?" demanded Stafford, his anger rising. "Then who is it?"

"It's the man who takes your place when you've been drinking."

"Well, what about this man? You don't like him?"

"No."

"Well, what are you going to do about it?"

She rose from her chair.

"I'm going to my room; I'm very tired, dear," she said.

Stafford rose, lurched against the table and pointed to the chair she had vacated.

"Come and sit down there," he commanded, pointing to the chair.

She turned away.

"Sit down there! There!" he repeated, angrily.

She sank into the chair.

As he gazed at her, his anger departed and the bright light again came to his eyes. He approached her and put a hand on her shoulder.

"You are so lovely to-night," he said; "this bit of lace at your throat—it is fascinating."

She seemed to wither under his caress.

As she shrank from him he exclaimed: "What is the matter? Is there anything wrong in a man telling his wife she is lovely? Is there?"

She did not answer.

"Is there?" he demanded again.

"No."

"Then what's the matter? If I put my hand on you is there anything wrong in that? Why do you want to quarrel with me to-night?"

"I don't," replied Virginia.

Wrenched from Him

"I came home as jolly and as happy as I could be," he said, in drunken protest. "When the fellows wanted me to stay longer I said, 'No, I've got the prettiest wife in the city and I am going home to her.' And I did so and kept saying to myself on the way home, 'She's the sweetest little woman in all the world and I love her.' And you know I love her, don't you?"

She nodded her head.

"Then we will not quarrel. Come, kiss me."

He had taken her hand. She wrenched it from him.

"I tell you I want to go," she cried.

"Come, let's kiss and make up to show that we are friends."

"I can't."

"Why?"

"I can't tell you."

"Yes, you can."

"For one thing, the odor of stale wine and whiskey is not pleasant," she said.

"Is there any other reason?"

"There is, and a very important one. I don't want to kiss you."

Stafford drew back and the anger came over him again.

"That means you don't love me. Is that it?" he asked.

"I love the man I married, with my whole heart," she told him. "And I know he loves me; but you are not the man I married. You are another man. You are a stranger, a man inflamed with liquor, a man who comes and talks of love to me when it isn't love at all, but only a degradation. His every protestation is an insult. I hate him! I hate him! Now will you let me go?"

"Not much I won't," he replied. "Even though you hate me you are still my wife."

"Robert!" she appealed.

"Who were you till I married you? Nobody. What were you? A telephone girl getting ten dollars a week. And now who are you? You're Mrs. Robert Stafford. And what are you? You are the wife of one of the richest men in the country. And how did he get you for his wife? HOW DID ROBERT STAFFORD GET YOU FOR HIS WIFE? I ASK. I WILL TELL YOU. HE BOUGHT AND PAID FOR YOU!"

"You didn't," she cried.

"Oh, yes I did," he reiterated. "Did you love me when you accepted me? No. Would you have married me if I had been poor? No. I bought you and I paid for you, and anything I've bought and paid for belongs to ME. And NOW will you kiss me?"

He again approached her, this time with an effort at conciliation.

"I don't want to quarrel with you. I want to be nice to you," he said.

"Then why do you wish to degrade me?" she asked.

"Degrade you?" he exclaimed. "Why, you're my wife!"

To Be Continued To-morrow.

"John Bigelow, New York's Grand Old Man, died smiling."—NEWS ITEM.

ONE day his eyelids closed in peace;
One day his throbbing heart did cease;
One day a hand he did not see
Unbarred the gates and set him free.

When through the gates his spirit sped,
The people, weeping, mourned him dead;
And yet there lingered all the while
Upon his face a wondrous smile.

As one departing oft will stand
And to his loved ones wave the hand
In fond farewell, as if to say,
"I shall be guarded on the way"—

So he, obeying the behest
To lay the body down in rest
And come within the gates to dwell,
Did pause and smile, for all was well.

OPERA WELCOMES BACK "THE GIRL"

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Last night at the opera the bill was "The Girl of the Golden West," and the stagers included Carmen Melis, Zenatello, and Polese.

Last year there was tremendous interest in this grand opera upon an American subject by the most successful of living composers. It was performed eight times here to crowded houses, and we heard all three of the Girls—Melis, Emmy Destinn, of New York, and Carolina White of Chicago.

It turned up last night in the course of the repertory, to be judged upon its merits as a musical and dramatic work, for the excitement incidental to its newness is gone. It was not especially advertised or boosted. Nevertheless there was a fair sized audience, and the same degree of enthusiasm after each act as prevailed last year.

"The Girl of the Golden West" was composed to a libretto adapted from Belasco's play in which Blanche Bates toured the United States for several years. Puccini, inspired by "Tosca," "Butterfly," "Manon Lescaut," and "Tosca," was induced to write an opera upon Americana theme by the Metropolitan Opera House.

Not Lacking in Melody.

Most of the music critics hastened to condemn the music of "The Girl," and predicted a short life for it. Puccini is not in favor with music critics and professional musicians. He has a knack of hitting the popular taste that annoys them because they do not rate him highly as a composer.

Between the descriptive music of "The Girl of the Golden West" and that of "Pecheas et Melisande" there is a gulf as wide as the Atlantic ocean, as we are places in "The Girl" that remind one of Debussy.

The principal charge against "The Girl" is that it lacks melody. This is not quite true. It does not teem with pretty tunes like "Boheme," but it is not less melodious than "Butterfly" or "Tosca." While it certainly very pretty, and the miner's song in Act I some is sweet and plaintive.

Johnson's aria in the third act is very beautiful and there are numerous other patches of tunefulness. But mostly it is harsh and fortuitous orchestration, hanging away at one's nerves, and emotions until the susceptible auditor finds himself sharing the agonies of the characters in the play.

There are things in this score that sound like his earlier operas and there is probably no doubt that Puccini is inserting things in "Tosca" and "Butterfly," and fixed them over just as the frugal woman remodels last year's hat until it is good as new. Some of her nasty neighbors are apt to penetrate the disguise and the same kind of people are continually finding Puccini out.

Good Show All Through.

Anyway "The [illegible] good show. It is full of excitement and thrills. The second act, with its climax in which a woman stakes herself in a game of cards against her lover's life and wins—by cheating—is as effective as the second act of "Tosca."

The scenery of the Boston Opera, which the Romans returned with thanks after using last summer in their production of "The Girl," is truly wonderful, especially the forest setting of the third act.

"The Girl" is Carmen Melis's best part. The role abounds in high notes, "a series of shrieks," Mary Garden calls it, and Melis is finest when she climbs into the treble regions, starts her stean whistle, and ties down the cord.

Zenatello proved to be a splendid Johnson. He acted naturally and effectively, but with the proper swagger of the bandit. He found the dramatic music of the part well suited to his voice and sang the lyric numbers with elegance.

Polese makes a suitable Jack Rance, Lanbow, who appeared for the first time as Ashby, is excellent; and Blanchart, Leyrer and Mardones complete the roster of the big cast repeated their success of last season.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; TOBACCO STOCK IS UP TO 107 7-8

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—There was little change in the price list at the opening of the stock market to-day, except among the specialties. American Tobacco preferred advanced nearly a point, to 107¾, and others showed marked strength.

A number of important stocks yielded slightly under selling pressure from the professional element. Western Union and Lacleda Gas made substantial gains. United States Steel common opened ¼ higher, then gained another eighth. Erie common, Missouri Pacific and Reading were unchanged. Canadian Pacific opened here ⅝ off on account of selling in the London market induced by reports of proposed heavy expenditures of the road in western Canada.

Amalgamated Copper was off ⅜, and American Sueiter ½ lower.

At the end of fifteen minutes Missouri Pacific had made a substantial fractional advance and there was evidently a demand from a new source in the market. Lehigh Valley shaded at the outset, then gained. The curb was steady.

Americans in London were sluggish.

CARDINAL GIBBONS WITNESS IN COURT

BALTIMORE, Jan. 18.—Cardinal Gibbons appeared in court at Towson, Baltimore County, as a witness in the trial of a will to the will of the late Joseph Friedenwald, disposing of an estate valued at $1,000,000. The caveat, filed by Moses Friedenwald, a son, alleges inanity as a ground for setting aside the will. In it will Mr. Friedenwald bequeathed $2,000 to the cardinal.

HUSBANDS ARE NOT ALLOWED TO STAY OUT NIGHTS among the Tuaregs, who live in Ghat, on the border of the Sahara, not far from Tripoli. Ghat is where women rule the men, for the men go veiled, everything belongs to the wife and every man must do just as some woman tells him. A marvelous story, brethren! A wonderful chronicle, sisters! Get it in the Sunday AMERICAN.

ARRAIGN HAMILTON ON LARCENY CHARGE

Ralph A. Hamilton, of No. 184 Hamilton street, Dorchester, was arraigned to-day charged with the larceny of $2,150 from George M. Tufts, a contractor, of No. 166 Devonshire street, since August, 1909, by padding the payrolls.

Suspicion first turned to Hamilton a month ago, when he was taken ill, and a substitute employed, who was aided in the temporary work by Hamilton's son.

HER TRESSES STOLEN WHILE SHE SLEPT

SPRINGFIELD, Jan. 18.—Emily Wilson, an eighteen-year-old telephone operator, has reported to the police that someone entered her parents' home at No. 86 Adams street while she was asleep and cut off her long auburn tresses. The police have made a careful investigation, but have failed to find any clew to the intruder the young woman declares for her loss. A Springfield hairdresser declared that hair such as Miss Wilson had would be worth fully $75 if sold to be made up into a switch.

CITY OF BOSTON
DELINQUENT TAXES

Collecting Department,
City Hall.

NOTICE is hereby given that all unpaid taxes or assessments on real estate in the City of Boston, assessed for 1910 or earlier, are now being prepared for sale.

Taxes paid before February 1, 1912, will not be advertised.

Taxes for 1911, due October 1, should be paid this financial year, which ends January 31st.

BOWDOIN S. PARKER,
City Collector.

STATE ST. NEWS AND COMMENT

Cotton trading is almost entirely professional in character. The big spot people are bullish in sentiment and frequent drives against shorts have taken the heart of bears. The latter predict an undiminished acreage next year. Notwithstanding the size of the Texas crop, the great increase in the yield came from the eastern belt.

Conditions in the bond market are reported better than for five years. In New York the sales yesterday of railroad, miscellaneous, city and government bonds amounted to $4,920,500. Yesterday's total compares with $3,900,000 on Tuesday. The transactions in bonds were the most important development in the securities market and are taken to indicate an increase in the public demand for investment securities.

Although the Tobacco combination has been broken up, the companies into which the trust was divided are pressing the independents harder than ever in competition, according to reports from all sources. Tobacco shares are occupying a prominent position in the stock markets now and show an advancing tendency.

Wall street is now speculating over the selling of Union Pacific, and it is reported that the leader in the movement is a Philadelphia who was a conspicuous seller of St. Paul about a year ago, when the stock broke from 132½ to 106. That operator is said to have liquidated more than 100,000 shares of Union Pacific since November.

New Bedford cotton manufacturing corporations paid in dividends in 1911 amounts aggregating $2,200, 475 against $3,057,500.50 in 1910, a decrease of $1,037,325.50 or 33 90-100 per cent. No extra or stock dividends were paid last year. It was the worst period for the cotton goods manufacturers in years. High prices for the best grades of raw cotton are believed to be the chief cause of the depression. The outlook for this year is uncertain, but there are rumors in New Bedford that a new cotton mill will be built there this year.

ATTENTION, HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS

High School Pupils, Attention! Would you like to go to the Opera? Then read the Boston Sunday AMERICAN.

On Saturday afternoon, January 27, the fairy opera, "Hansel and Gretel," will be given at the Boston Opera. The AMERICAN intends to distribute twelve pairs of seats for this performance to pupils in the high schools of Greater Boston.

The seats will be awarded as prizes in an easy writing contest.

The topic to be discussed will be announced in Sunday's AMERICAN and all details regarding the contest will be printed at that time. Look for the "Hansel and Gretel" contest regulations, which will be printed upon the music page of the Sunday AMERICAN.

FRANCE DEMANDS RELEASE OF VESSEL

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Immediate release of the mail steamship Carthage, seized by an Italian cruiser and now held at Cagliara, Sardinia, was demanded of Italy by the French government to-day. Premier Poincare notified his cabinet to-day that Italy would be called on to free the steamship, and said that the French government expected early compliance with the terms of its note.

How to Get There.

Many inquiries are made as to the best way of getting to the Carnival course on the Charles River Basin. Complied in obedience to give is: "Go to Harvard bridge and walk down the esplanade to the start and finish at Gloucester street."

Some entrants fill out their entry blank by saying they intend to enter the "free for all." There is no one race listed that way. There are three "open-to-all" races. The Entrants must specify which one or ones.

The races are divided into championship and "open-to-all." The championship races, for men, include:

Quarter-mile dash.

Two-mile race.

Five-mile race.

Ten-mile race.

The "open-to-all" events include:

Half-mile race for boys, eighteen or under.

Quarter-mile race for boys, twelve or under.

Half-mile race for girls.

In addition there will be special features. William H. Merritt of St. John, N. B., professional world's champion, will skate against time in an exhibition race.

Gordon Thompson of Spring Hill, N. S., amateur champion skater, will be there with a challenge to any New England skater to meet him in a skating race or in jumping match on skates.

There will be a hockey match, a curling match and other features to make the carnival card long and interesting.

In case the ice on the Charles River Basin is not in good shape for the Carnival next Saturday afternoon the Carnival will be postponed to the following Monday, January 22, when it will be held in the Boston Arena on St. Botolph street. The lobby ice surface of the Arena is available at any time, no matter what the weather.

None but contestants and Carnival officials will be allowed on the ice during the Carnival events. Spectators will view the races and other events from the embankment.

Investigating a Clock with a Can Opener

An Editorial About the Uses of Curiosity

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner

In the London Sketch is a picture of a little boy looking up at his father while he holds behind his back a nickel-plated alarm clock he has just borrowed from the kitchen.

"Papa," he is saying, "do you know where I can find the can opener?" (It is "tin opener" in the Sketch—we take the liberty of freely translating.)

Of course you know what the boy is going to do with that clock when he finds the can opener. You can readily imagine his futile efforts to get it open with a pocket knife, and a screw driver, and possibly a tack hammer. You can picture his despair when none of these implements was successful, and his joy when the brilliant idea came to him that a can opener would enable him to probe the vitals of the cogwheeled mystery and learn for himself just how and why the clock ticked off the little seconds and marked the passing of the long hours with its narrow hands.

Certain fathers, reading the foregoing anecdote, will grit their teeth and reflect that if THEIR sons begin carving up the family clocks there will be a half hour of stern retribution.

Many mothers—and mothers ought to understand children better—will throw up their hands in dismay, thinking what terribly destructive little demons children are. In every family there is a punctured drum, a broken music box or a disemboweled doll to testify to the curiosity which people who do not understand human nature call wanton destructiveness.

There are few children, or grown people, who tear things to pieces simply for the purpose of destroying something. The laws of nature, which we must obey, whether we want to or not, provide for constant demolition and reconstruction.

And those who would aid in reconstruction wisely, and so as to add to the progress of the world, must have a hand in the demolition. NO NEW THING CAN BE DONE WITHOUT ENOUGH KNOWLEDGE OF OLD THINGS TO IMPROVE UPON THEM.

By the time they are five or six years old, little boys and girls discover that they are intensely curious. They want to know about things. The curiosity is in them, just as hunger is in them, for the purpose of development. Because they are hungry they come regularly to their meals, that their bodies may be fed.

Because they are curious they ask multitudes of questions, and, better still, start original investigations, that their minds may be fed.

The little boy who was looking for the can opener would, upon finding it, seriously impair the usefulness of a seventy-cent alarm clock. But he would know something about clocks and machinery.

He would discover that a coiled steel spring drove one cogwheel which acted upon other cogwheels and through them upon the hands. He would see a short pendulum swinging to and fro, and checking off the minutes, giving regularity to the revolution of the hands.

Undoubtedly he would make an unsuccessful attempt to restore the clock to its original condition. Watch any child who destroys things and you will observe that he tries still harder to put them together again, and is deeply distressed when he finds that he cannot do so.

Please do not understand us as favoring the use of alarm clocks for juvenile vivisection. There are other ways to gratify children's curiosity besides permitting them to destroy useful things.

But we do urge upon parents to encourage curiosity in their children—to answer all of their questions that can be answered out of any human intelligence, and not to believe that they are destined for train wreckers or dynamiters because they are fond of looking into drums and prodding the inside of the piano with screw drivers.

As is a man's curiosity, so will his usefulness in the world be. The smug, self-satisfied gentleman, who cares for nothing beyond his means of getting rich, and scorns to interest himself in the building of the house across the way or the wiring of the new electric railroad, is of about as much use as a mud turtle, which is said to be utterly devoid of curiosity.

It is "finding things out" that makes the human race move up toward better things—more intelligence, more comfort, more happiness.

Watt was curious about the steam that came from his mother's tea kettle, and the Twentieth Century Limited is one of the results of his gratifying that curiosity. He smashed the tea kettle, of course, and his mother was scandalized, denouncing him for a worthless vandal. But to-day we can travel between Boston and Chicago in eighteen hours.

Galileo, Copernicus, Columbus, Fulton, Edison—all have been led by intelligent curiosity to do great things for their fellow men.

The curiosity of the modern scientist will inspire him to devote years of long, patient study to find out one apparently small bit of information. That kind of curiosity has provided cures for smallpox and diphtheria, has made operations painless, and is slowly exterminating consumption and cholera and yellow fever from the face of the earth.

We need not hold "the bump of destructiveness" in such horror. It is almost invariably the outward and visible sign of an inward and useful curiosity, and a child gifted with enough of that quality is reasonably sure to get along in the world without assistance.

Abdicating His Throne

Sherlocko the Monk

By GUS MAGER

Copyright, 1912, by the National News Association

SOME STRANGE FORCE LURED MY HUSBAND OUT OF THE HOUSE AT 5 O'CLOCK THIS MORNING! HE NEVER GOES OUT WITHOUT ASKING MY PERMISSION, BUT THIS MORNING HE SHOT OUT OF THE HOUSE WITHOUT A WORD!
COME, WATSO, WE WILL GO WITH MRS. HENPECKO!
HE GOT UP THIS MORNING, TOOK ONE GLANCE OUT OF THE WINDOW, HURRIEDLY PUT ON HIS CLOTHES, AND RUSHED OUT OF THE HOUSE WITHOUT EVEN A CUP OF COFFEE!
TUT-TUT, WATSO - IN THAT CASE HE WOULD NOT HAVE LEFT BY THE FRONT DOOR; AS THESE FOOT-PRINTS SHOW HE DID! LET US WALK DOWN THE SIDE-WALK!
HENPECKO'S PROPERTY, WHICH ENDS HERE, HAS QUITE A LONG FRONTAGE ON THE STREET, EH SHERLOCKO?
I HAVE ALREADY OBSERVED THAT, WATSO, AND MADE MY DEDUCTIONS THEREFROM. LET US RETURN TO THE SLEIGH!
IT'S CLEAR ENOUGH TO ME THAT WHEN HE LOOKED OUT HE SAW SOMEONE COMING WHOM HE WISHED TO AVOID!
YOU'RE NOT GOING TO GIVE UP THE CASE FOR THE SAKE OF A SLEIGH RIDE?
ON THE CONTRARY, WATSO — WE ARE GOING STRAIGHT TO HENPECKO
SO, HENPECKO, WHEN YOU LOOKED OUT OF THE WINDOW AND SAW ALL THAT SNOW ON YOUR LONG SIDEWALK YOU MADE YOURSELF SCARCE!
WELL, SHE MAKES ME SHOVEL EVERY FLAKE OFF BEFORE I GO TO THE OFFICE, AND THERE'S BEEN TOO MUCH OF IT LATELY!
POOR HEN!

Sherlocko the Monk, with h is friend, Dr. Watso, Is now a regu lar feature of the Sunday AMERICAN. Don't miss the funny de tective work of Sherlocko in the S unday AMERICAN.

It Is Quite Impossible to "Give Three Cheers" in Type

So We Restrain Ourselves, and Simply ANNOUNCE the Fact that Arnold Bennett, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and Montague Glass, the "Potash and Perlmutter" Fellow, Are Writing Stories for Next Sunday's AMERICAN.

Some day there will be a press agent for the press, a new and striking method for calling attention to the fact that a popular newspaper is about to offer something extraordinary to its readers.

You know how the theatres do it. When the theatre is about to introduce the most important play of the time, or the most wonderful or most famous or most notorious star, you suddenly begin to see and to hear the name of the attraction or the star on all sides. There are picture stories about the author and his home life. There are wonderful histories about the trips to Central Africa that were necessary before the scene painters got the local color for their work. The lady star is interviewed about husbands and babies and divorce. The "house" is speedily sold out for the first performance, and then the public does the rest. Let the attraction be good or bad, and, one way or the other, the public does the rest.

Consider for a moment how different it is with the newspaper. Supposing the Brockton Times has a wonderful story to tell to the people of the Plymouth County towns it serves so well. Is the Brockton Enterprise going to devote columns to interviews with Publisher Buchanan about the Times feature? Indeed, not. Nor is the Times going into ecstasies over some triumph by the Enterprise. When it comes to press notices about the press, every publisher and every editor must do his own advance work.

We are moved to these thoughts to-day because the Boston Sunday AMERICAN is about to give its more than a million readers the most wonderful fiction treat that has ever been spread before the readers of a single New England newspaper on one day. We almost wish the type could talk about it.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Mr. Montague Glass and Mr. Arnold Bennett have all been writing for next Sunday's AMERICAN!

Get the list firmly in your mind:

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, author of the "Sherlock Holmes" stories.

Mr. Montague Glass, creator of "Potash and Perlmutter."

Mr. Arnold Bennett, beyond question the greatest living English novelist.

ALL writing for next Sunday's AMERICAN!

The Conan Doyle story will be the first of a remarkable series of tales of Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson. We need say no more. You know what this means.

Montague Glass will offer a short story about the joys and sorrows of the "ladies garments" business in New York.

Arnold Bennett begins a gripping mystery story, which he calls "The Prince and the Plutocrat, or The Grand Babylon Hotel."

OF COURSE the Sunday AMERICAN will contain a thousand attractive things besides, and OF COURSE it will have the news of all New England down to the last minute. NOT ONE of its characteristic features will be omitted. Conan Doyle, Montague Glass and Arnold Bennett are EXTRA ADDED ATTRACTIONS.

The editor of the Sunday AMERICAN feels that he would be remiss in his duty to the public if he failed to call attention to these special attractions in the Boston Sunday AMERICAN.

A little fire is quickly trodden out;
Which, being suffered, rivers cannot quench. SHAKESPEARE

Little Bobbie

He Writes About Pa as a Viking

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

PA calm hoam the other nite looklin like a snow man. There was a awful snow storm, a regiar blizzard. You poor deer, sed Ma, wen she helped Pa off with his coat & hat, you poor deer, you must be neerly ded with the cold.

Not at all, sed Pa, not at all. I am made of sterner stuff & a little thing like a cold spell wud nor make me quit. My ancestors was Vikings, Pa sed, tho I may never have mentshuned the fack befour, they was vikings that sailed the stormy North seas & never showed mercy to a unworthy foe. What cared they for cold? Pa set to Ma. I deant know, sed Ma, I give it up, what cared they?

Nothing, wife, sed Pa, ab-so-lutely nothing. Strong in the know-leg of thare strength, Pa sed, they roamed every-where, & many a man felt the might of thare arms.

Well, sed Ma, deant stand thare shivering all nite, cum on in & git warmed up befour dinner.

I have only time for a hasty snack, sed Pa, & then I must be going rite out agenn. I am going to help my asim old pal that I helped oust befour. I went to college with him & we played on the asim football teem, Pa sed. I mean Mr. O'Rourke, Pa sed, he needs the help of hardy cleer-headed men like me.

Ma looked at Pa kind of funny. You deant tell me that you are going to brav the storm agenn foulte, she sed. Why, sed Ma, you maik me laff. You are shivering all over now, like one of them littel dogs that hasent got any fur. & the subway stashun whare you got off is only one block from here. Now you cum rite in & put on the new bathrobe that I bought for you for Christmas & put on yure carpet slippers & after you have had yure dinner I will let you smoak one of them fine cigars my mother got you for New Years.

No, deer wife, sed Pa, I will have dinner but I must then away. Duty calls, sed Pa, & it shall never be sed that the son of a Viking was afrade of a littel cold & a littel snow. Besides, sed Pa, think how Mr. O'Rourke needs me. In the words of the poet, sed Pa,

The North wind does blow
& we shall have snow
& what will O'Rourke do then, poor thing?

Without me a-helping
Boston will be yelping.

See here, husband, sed Ma, I deant know if any of my ancestors was vikings or not, but I do know this: They never did back up wen they made up thare minds, & thare linyal decendant is jest the same. Nov, I have made up my mind that you are too good & nobel to remain away from yure fireside tonite. Better a live sport than a ded snow man, sed Ma. Do you follow me? sed Ma.

Yes, sed Pa.
